and legal scholarship James Williams seeks to move beyond these conventional accounts arguing that they are based on a limited view of the regulatory process and overlook the actual practices and dilemmas of enforcement work Informed by interviews with police regulators lawyers accountants and investor advocates along with a wealth of documentary materials the book is rooted in a uniquely interdisciplinary social science perspective Peering inside the black box of enforcement it examines the organizational professional geographical technological and legal influences that shape securities enforcement as a distinctly knowledge based enterprise The result of these influences Williams argues is the production of a very particular vision of financial disorder which captures certain forms of misconduct while overlooking others a reflection not of incompetence or capture but of the unique demands and constraints of the regulatory craft Providing a very different and much needed account of the challenges faced by regulators and enforcement agencies this book will be of enormous interest to current research on enforcement regulation and governance both within and beyond the financial realm Canadian
