

Below are questions you should be able to answer from the material you learned throughout this semester. Please answer the questions in a different color ink/text. We will go over the questions each day up until the day of the final. Use the notes we have taken, PowerPoints, review guides, and worksheets to help you in answering the questions.

1. What is structuralism? very subjective type of psychology, relies on introspection to see a person's structure
2. What is functionalism? basically says the mind is a blank slate, the mind is a tool
3. What is the Humanistic Perspective? everyone can reach their full potential
4. What is the Psychoanalytic Perspective? past experiences and childhood
5. What is the Sociocultural Perspective? embracing society
6. What is the Cognitive Perspective? thinking and thinking processes
7. What is the Behaviorist Perspective? learned actions
8. What is the Biological Perspective? genetics
9. What is the scientific study of behavior and mental processes? psychology
10. What is the difference between a case study, naturalistic observation, and an experiment? A case study is deeper looking at 1-3 subjects. Naturalistic observation is watching and observing a subject without interjecting. An experiment is controlled with things needed to be solved.
11. Who established the first laboratory for the study of the mind? Wilhelm Wundt
12. What is introspection? looking into yourself and studying yourself for psychological investigation
13. What are the four goals of psychology? describe, explain, predict, and change
14. Why is it important that we replicate a study? It is important to make sure that we get accurate results
15. What is the survey method and how are they conducted? surveys are a list of questions and have criteria to follow
16. What are the elements of an experiment? they are manipulation, control, random assignment, and random selection
17. Explain the difference between a single and a double blind study. single blind study is where the participants don't know the outcome and a double blind is where both the participants and the collector are blind
18. Why are ethics important in psychology? It is important because without the ethics of experiments, people would exploit the fact they can do whatever they want. They would go through with the most unethical experiment, hurting the participant(s).
19. What is the difference between the Independent and the Dependent variable? The independent variable is the variable that you change and the dependent is the variable that you measure and gather data from.
20. What is the difference between experimental and control groups? The experimental group is the group being tested on and the control group is the group that is given the "normal" experience.
21. What is the placebo effect and why would it be harmful to a study? The placebo effect is telling someone that something does something it doesn't; you are gaslighting someone basically. It can be harmful in an experiment as it can change per person, giving varying results. It could even create problems for the participant or become irreversible.
22. What are the four stages of Piaget's development? sensorimotor, preoperational, concrete operational, and formal operational
