Part I – The Inquiry Begins

It was a brisk fall day in Boston—the type of day that Dr. William Castle preferred to start with a cup of coffee while he caught up on his correspondence, which often appeared to be an endless task. As a faculty member of Harvard Medical School, he had always received a fair amount of inquiries, but after he had published his data indicating that pernicious anemia was due to a vitamin B₁₂ deficiency, the amount of mail he received was sometimes overwhelming.

Sitting in his reclining chair he sorted through the large pile that had accumulated. He began to meticulously segregate it into smaller piles he would open in a prescribed order. Usually the delegation of a particular envelope was a relatively easy choice. There were a few that caused him to pause for a moment, such as the one he was currently holding. The return address indicated it was from an Irving Sherman at Johns Hopkins University. Since it was from someone he had never heard of, he was inclined to place it in the pile to be opened later. But on this day he decided to take another sip of coffee and see what Mr. Sherman had to say (see next page).

* Disclaimer: This case is a work of fiction that refers to real events and people. All of the discoveries mentioned in Section 1 were made by the individuals they are attributed to, as were the observations made by Dr. Vernon Hahn described in Section 2. The time between discoveries has been dramatically condensed, however. Every effort has been made to present the scientific considerations concisely and accurately. Any errors should be attributed to the author and not the original investigators.

Plasmar, 2004 Sickle cell anaemia is an inherited blood disorder characterised primarily by chronic anaemia and periodic episodes of pain and occurring in approximately 1 in every 400 African American infants born in the United States each year Individuals of Mediterranean Arabian Caribbean South and Central American and East Indian ancestry can also be affected The underlying problem involves haemoglobin a component of the red cells in the blood The haemoglobin molecules in each red blood cell carry oxygen from the lungs to the body organs and tissues and bring back carbon dioxide to the lungs In sickle cell anaemia the haemoglobin is defective After the haemoglobin molecules give up their oxygen some of them may cluster together and form long rod like structures These structures cause the red blood cells to become stiff and to assume a sickle shape Unlike normal red cells which are usually smooth and donut shaped the sickled red cells cannot squeeze through small blood vessels Instead they stack up and cause blockages that deprive the organs and tissue of oxygen carrying blood This process produces the periodic episodes of pain and ultimately can damage the tissues and vital organs and lead to other serious medical problems Unlike normal red blood cells which last about 120 days in the bloodstream sickled red cells die after only about 10 to 20 days Because they cannot be replaced fast enough the blood is chronically short of red blood cells a condition called anaemia Sickle cell anaemia is caused by an error in the gene that tells the body how to make haemoglobin The defective gene tells the body to make the abnormal haemoglobin that results in deformed red blood cells This book gathers the latest research in this important field
