normally considered to have fewer opportunities to borrow from banks due to insufficient valuable assets for collateral. These low income households face limited opportunity to acquire new technology and working capital for agricultural production and thus tend to fall behind. As a result, providing access to finance to low income rural households has been considered an important component of any rural development strategy. Microfinance programmes in particular have been gradually embedded in national strategies of many developing countries as they are poverty focused. They aim to facilitate the access to financial services such as credit for the poor who are usually disadvantaged in terms of access to conventional financial services from formal financial institutions. The objective of this book is to provide an overview of microfinance programmes in Asia, focusing in particular on the determinants of the accessibility of rural households to microcredit. The book studies seven Asian countries such as China, Malaysia, Vietnam, Thailand, the Philippines, Indonesia, and Bangladesh, with two specific case studies: Determinants of Loan Repayment in Micro Finance Institutions Tnsue Gebrekidan Bezabh, 2013. Although the MFIs had been showing an inspiring progress since their establishment, they are experiencing default problems as can be observed in their declining repayment rates. If you want to know whether default is random and influenced by erratic behavior or whether it is influenced by certain factors in a specific situation, this book tells you what reason is behind. Thus, it is my firm belief that you can learn more.
