Knowledge Power And Practice The Anthropology Of Medicine And Everyday Life Comparative Studies Of Health Systems And Medical Care:

Knowledge, Power, and Practice Shirley Lindenbaum, Margaret M. Lock, 1993-10-04 Ranging in time and locale these essays which combine theoretical argument with empirical observation are based on research in historical and cultural settings The contributors accept the notion that all knowledge is socially and culturally constructed and examine the contexts in which that knowledge is produced and practiced in medicine psychiatry epidemiology and anthropology from publisher description

Medical Anthropology and the World System Hans A. Baer, Merrill Singer, Ida Susser, 2013-05-23 Now in its third edition this textbook serves to frame understandings of health health related behavior and health care in light of social and health inequality as well as structural violence It also examines how the exercise of power in the health arena and in society overall impacts human health and well being Medical Anthropology and the World System Critical Perspectives Third Edition includes updated and expanded information on medical anthropology resulting in an even more comprehensive resource for undergraduate students graduate students and researchers worldwide As in the previous versions of this text the authors provide insights from the perspective of critical medical anthropology a well established theoretical viewpoint from which faculty researchers and students study medical anthropology It addresses the nature and scope of medical anthropology the biosocial and political ecological origins of disease health inequities and social suffering and the nature of medical systems in indigenous and pre capitalist state societies and modern societies The third edition also includes new material on the relationship between climate change and health Finally this textbook explores health praxis and the struggle for a healthy world

Culture and Medicine Rishi Goyal, Arden Hegele, 2022-10-20 Charting shared advances across the emerging fields of medical humanities and health humanities this book engages with the question of how biomedical knowledge is constructed negotiated and circulated as a cultural practice The volume is composed of a series of pathbreaking inter disciplinary essays that bring sociocultural habits of mind and modes of thought to the study of medicine health and patients These juxtapositions create new forms of knowledge while emphasizing the vulnerability of human bodies anti essentialist approaches to biology a sensitivity to language and rhetoric and an attention to social justice These essays dissect the ways that cultural practices define the limits of health and the body from the body's place and trajectory in the world to how bodies relate to one another from questions about ageing and sex to what counts as health and illness Considering how these and other concepts are shaped by a negotiation between medico scientific knowledge and ways of knowing derived from other domains this book provides important new insights into how biomedical frameworks become settled forms for broader cultural understanding

Medical Challenges for the New Millennium Stefan N. Willich, S. Elm, 2013-04-17 In 1978 the World Health Organization WHO designated the year 2000 as the due date for world health The Alma Ata declaration set the turn of the century as the target for a level of health that would permit all people of the world to lead a socially and economically productive life At that magic but arbitrary date most infectious diseases and many chronic conditions including diabetes and cancer were expected to have been eradicated or at least controlled Such predictions were based on solid foundations In the 20th century and particularly since the 1970s Western science and technology based on modern medicine has made quantum leaps in numerous areas as diverse as pharmacology genetic and molecular biology surgical techniques infertility treatments and pre and neonatal care This impressive trajectory of progress which continues unabatedly gave every reason to assume that come the year 2000 humanity would finally be free from many of its ancient scourges However as we are all too well aware the new millennium witnesses also ever more terrifying threats to our health as a result of the emergence of AIDS in the early 80s the resurgence of infectious diseases such as tuberculosis and malaria now drug resistant the absence of significant breakthroughs in the treatment of cancer and cardiovascular diseases and the continuing dramatic gap in health care between industrialized and developing countries to mention but a few examples

Postcolonial Theologies: Divinity and Empire P4011 R5050 Catherine Keller, 2004 A theology in tune with postcolonial theory has the potential to creatively inform and transform ecclesial practice Focusing on the relation of theology to postcolonial theory Postcolonial Theologies brings together a wide diversity of authors many of them fresh and exciting theological voices in essays that are stunningly creative and prophetically lucid All essays are theologically constructive not merely deconstructive or critical in their visions for Christianity Forming a sort of doctrinal landscape they emerge under the themes of theological anthropology shaped by ethnicity class and privilege a Christology that intersects the claims of Christ and empire and a Cosmology that imagines a postcolonial world

Living and Working with the New Medical Technologies Margaret M. Lock, Allan Young, Alberto Cambrosio, 2000-07-31 This stimulating collection of essays a product of face to face dialogues among anthropologists sociologists and philosopher historians focuses on the newly created biomedical technologies and their application in practice Drawing on ethnographic and historical case studies the authors show how biomedical technologies are produced through the agencies of tools and techniques scientists and doctors funding bodies patients clients and the public Despite shared concerns the contributions reveal that the authors have achieved no consensus about the objectives of their research Deep epistemological divides clearly remain making for provocative reading

Medical Anthropology, Tribals of Rajasthan Veena Bhasin,2005 It is generally presumed that tribals in India tend to be healthy living as they do in unpolluted surroundings away from the stresses and strains of modern living This no longer hold good as evident from the many health reports appearing with health related problems It is alarming that sufficient data regarding tribal health is not available with the government itself The plight of tribals whose health parameters are already well below the national average is worsening One of the basic factors which affect the tribal health is the physical environment from which majority of them draw their sustenance Degraded eco systems are no longer able to support tribal population many of whom have registered a higher growth rate than the national average On the contrary there are tribal communities which are actually declining and being threatened with extinction because of malnutrition which renders them more susceptible to disease The diseases which can be easily cured assume epidemic proportion among tribals because of isolation of their habitats illiteracy and lack of access to medical care The present study deals with human settlements human activities and health among tribals of Rajasthan Human settlements are territorially bounded socialsystem or subsystems economic material culture religious political ethical educational legal social reproductive etc serving a resident population In the tradition of anthropological science the study was undertaken within total social and cultural context Although research work was carried in few villages but it did not confined only to those Village was chosen as unit of study because it is the most manageable functional unit in which a pattern of tribal culture and structure of tribal society could be studied The main purpose of the study was to obtain an integrated picture of the tribal s health and sickness nutritional status socio economic conditions settlement pattern and environ mental conditions against the background of existing medical and sanitary facilities available so as to discover the main health provision and necessary measures for bringing about improvement in the health care system Anthropology Newsletter ,1994
