David, 2019-07-23 This book investigates the belief patterns that underly alternative perspectives of development thought and policy It discusses the differing theories and models of development in a discursive manner to highlight the importance of interaction between academic discourse and everyday life experiences Utilizing insights drawn from the history of ideas economic history philosophy and political economy the author shows how the field of development economics has evolved

Reclaiming economics for future generations Lucy Ambler, Joe Earle, Nicola Scott, 2022-01-25 Today's economies fail to recognise that we are in a rapidly worsening crisis reproducing and often worsening vast and harmful inequalities between people and countries The current models are unsustainable and at a time when global temperatures are rising and divides are deepening humanity is left in a rapidly worsening situation of its own making the destruction of the living world which will make large parts of the earth uninhabitable Without access to the knowledge skills or tools to build a better future local national and global economies will continue to fail to address the interlinked challenges of systemic racism inequalities faced by women the Covid 19 pandemic and the nature and climate emergency Across the world economics students are coming together under the banner of the student movement Rethinking Economics to create a better economics one which can help to create a world where all our children can flourish regardless of their gender background or birthplace Drawing on over sixty interviews with students and professionals from identities and backgrounds marginalised in economics and a wide range of global and historical research this book illustrates the ways in which the discipline is currently not fit for purpose and sets out a vision for how it can be diversified decolonised and democratised The struggle to reclaim economics could not be more crucial our futures depend on it This book explains how it can be done

Africonomics Bronwen Everill, 2025-09-09 A bold concise history of Western economic interventions in Africa by the former director of the Centre of African Studies at the University of Cambridge For centuries Westerners have tried to fix African economies From the abolition of slavery onward missionaries philanthropists development economists and NGOs have arrived on the continent full of good intentions and bad ideas Their experiments have invariably gone awry to the great surprise of all involved Historian Bronwen Everill argues that these interventions fail and frequently cause harm because they start from a misguided premise that African economies just need to be more like the

West Ignoring Africa's own traditions of economic thought Americans and Europeans assumed a set of universal economic laws that they thought could be applied anywhere They enforced specifically Western ideas about growth wealth debt unemployment inflation women's work and more and used Western metrics to find African countries wanting The West does not know better than African nations how an economy should be run By laying bare the myths and realities of our tangled economic history Africonomics moves from Western ignorance to African knowledge Poor Numbers Morten Jerven, 2013-01-24 One of the most urgent challenges in African economic development is to devise a strategy for improving statistical capacity Reliable statistics including estimates of economic growth rates and per capita income are basic to the operation of governments in developing countries and vital to nongovernmental organizations and other entities that provide financial aid to them Rich countries and international financial institutions such as the World Bank allocate their development resources on the basis of such data The paucity of accurate statistics is not merely a technical problem it has a massive impact on the welfare of citizens in developing countries Where do these statistics originate How accurate are they Poor Numbers is the first analysis of the production and use of African economic development statistics Morten Jerven's research shows how the statistical capacities of sub-Saharan African economies have fallen into disarray The numbers substantially misstate the actual state of affairs As a result scarce resources are misapplied Development policy does not deliver the benefits expected Policymakers attempts to improve the lot of the citizenry are frustrated Donors have no accurate sense of the impact of the aid they supply Jerven's findings from sub-Saharan Africa have far reaching implications for aid and development policy As Jerven notes the current catchphrase in the development community is evidence based policy and scholars are applying increasingly sophisticated econometric methods but no statistical techniques can substitute for partial and unreliable data IES Report, 1988 The International Development Dictionary Gerald Walton Fry, Galen R.
