Fisher, 1990-09-20 Significant recent advances in cell culture technology now permit a detailed biochemical and molecular analysis of differentiation in both normal and tumor cells These studies are important in attempting to understand the complex factors involved in normal growth and development as well as the abnormalities associated with carcinogenesis Mechanisms of Differentiation Volumes I and II is comprised of review chapters addressing various topics of current interest in this important area of research Topics discussed include genes controlling differentiation changes in gene expression during differentiation induction of differentiation induction of differentiation as a mode of action of chemotherapeutic agents and the effect of cell shape growth factors and differentiation modulating agents on the differentiated cell phenotype Mechanisms of Differentiation is valuable to researchers involved in differentiation and development carcinogenesis cell biology chemotherapy and immunology Practice and Theory of Enzyme

Immunoassays P. Tijssen, 1985-08-01 Enzyme immunoassays have developed into a powerful assay technology transcending several discipline boundaries extensively applied as a tool in fields other than enzymology and immunology This volume reflects the rapid progress in the applications of this technique providing a basic understanding of these techniques and a practical guideline for the choice and experimental detail Journal National Cancer Institute (U.S.), 1978

Angiogenesis Michael E. Maragoudakis, 2013-11-21 Interest in angiogenesis research remains strong in recent years and exciting new discoveries about modulators of angiogenesis their receptors the transduction mechanisms and the angiogenic genes involved have contributed to our present day understanding of this complex process This knowledge has provided the basis and broadened the scope of angiogenesis based therapy in oncology and many other clinical conditions This monograph contains the contributions to the NATO Advanced Study Institute on Angiogenesis Models Modulators and Clinical Applications which was held in Rhodes Greece from June 20-30 1997 This was the fourth of a series of NATO supported international meetings on Angiogenesis aiming to bring together basic scientists with clinicians to exchange ideas disseminate new knowledge and discuss the present status and potential new directions in this fast moving area of biomedical research The International Organising Committee that included Drs E Dejana C Haudenschild M Hackel H Kleinman P Lelkes M Presta P Polverini D Thompson has provided invaluable help with their insightful suggestions in the formulation of the scientific program for which I am grateful I wish to thank all the participants for their enthusiastic participation and their complimentary comments on the success of the conference Culture of Animal Cells R. Spitzer,2015-09-16 Cyclic nucleotides control a number of neuronal properties including neuronal differentiation pathfinding regulation of excitability and synaptic transmission and control of gene expression Signaling events mediated by cAMP or cGMP are transient and take place within the complex 3 dimensional structure of the neuronal cell Signaling events happen on the time scale of seconds to minutes and the biological significance of the temporal dimension remains poorly understood Structural features of neurons dendritic spines and branches cell body nucleus axon as well as AKAPs and other scaffolding proteins that keep signaling enzymes together and form signaling microdomains are critical spatial determinants of signal integration Finally the types of enzymes involved in signal integration which are expressed as a number of different types and splice variants yield another dimension that determines signal integration properties Biosensor imaging provides direct temporal and spatial measurement of intracellular signals This novel approach together with more conventional methods such as biochemistry electrophysiology and modeling now provide a better understanding of the spatial and temporal features of cyclic nucleotide signal integration in living neurons This topic aims at providing a better understanding of how neurons are making sense of cyclic nucleotide signaling in living neurons The Role of Inflammation in Organ Injury Xin Zhang,Di Fan,Lijun Cheng,Can Hu,2025-11-19 Inflammation is implicated in the pathogenesis of various diseases including cardiovascular pulmonary and renal diseases The induction of inflammation involves different cell types and cytokines which is further amplified by the crosstalk among these cells and cytokines In response to organ injury damage associated molecular patterns and pathogen associated molecular patterns bind to the specific pattern recognition receptors and subsequently transduce the extracellular stimuli to intracellular signaling network to induce the expression and release of inflammatory cytokines These cytokines recruit resident or circulating leukocytes to the injury site which in turn produce excessive inflammatory mediators creating a vicious circle While inflammation initially helps to remove the injured tissue or cell debris necessary for tissue healing uncontrolled inflammation eventually leads to cell senescence pyroptosis apoptosis and organ dysfunction Therefore elucidating the molecular mechanisms of inflammation and optimizing the inflammatory process are promising therapeutic strategies for treating organ injury The goal of this Research Topic is to provide a forum to advance research on elucidating the molecular mechanisms of inflammation in organ injury and to develop efficient therapeutic strategies for these diseases We welcome the submission of Reviews Original Research articles Perspectives and Methods covering but are not restricted to the following topics 1 Inflammatory modulation based on gene delivery or natural products for organ injury 2 Investigation of molecular mechanisms for inflammation during organ injury using multi omics approaches such as single cell sequencing transcriptomics proteomics and metabolomics 3 The role of inflammation in mediating cross talk between cells or organs 4 Diagnostic value of plasma inflammatory cytokines for organ injury Please note Manuscripts consisting solely of computational analysis of bioinformatics or public genomic or transcriptional databases without validation independent cohort or in vitro or in vivo biological validation are outside the scope of this section and are not accepted as part of this research topic Manuscript dealing with traditional or complementary medicine without a very strong focus on immunological parameters are out of scope for this journal

Mechanotransduction in Vascular Development and Disease Julia J. Mack, Brian Gene Coon, Nicolas Baeyens, 2024-12-26

There is growing interest in understanding the dynamic roles of physical forces in vascular development homeostasis and disease While it is well established that all cells are responsive to their external environment and the cells of the vascular system are constantly exposed to hemodynamic forces we are still uncovering how these external cues influence vascular cell signaling to direct cell identity cell phenotype vascular organization and vessel function Work is emerging that defines how vascular cells interpret and respond to these external forces to reveal how the biomechanical environment influences cell signaling and behavior This collection on vascular mechanotransduction will address how cells respond to external physical forces during vessel development and organization later in vessel homeostasis and in the context of cardiovascular disease
