SPECTRUM
SUNGLASSES

You studied environmental science in college and are active in many environmental causes. You believe deeply in the potential for the sustainability initiative to foster innovative R&D and a broader product portfolio at Spectrum, and you are willing to stake your career on its success. You aggressively lobby your friend and mentor, Deborah Edge, about the benefits of this initiative.

You are Director of Product Innovation within the Research & Development unit of Spectrum Sunglasses Company. Spectrum's immediate future looks bright as the company enters its second decade of operations. Externally, the consumer sunglasses market is growing again, and competitive-pricing pressures have subsided. The company recently rehired some of the workers laid off during the last recession, and many departmental budgets have been restored to well-funded, pre-recession levels. You are especially proud that one potential new product design has received positive focus group feedback after the first phase of development, and some exciting branding deals with Hollywood celebrities are under negotiation. Everyone at Spectrum Sunglasses is looking forward to growth and enhanced earnings.

While you generally feel very positive regarding the situation at Spectrum, you have noticed that the topic of sustainable economic development and the link between sustainability and innovation is featured in many of the professional articles you read, such as "Why Sustainability is Now the Key Driver of Innovation." You are frustrated that you don't have any new sunglasses products to offer to the

Journal of Economic Literature ,1996 How Marketing Works: Practical Readings Paul T. McElhiney, Henry S. Ang, 1971

Disruptive Business Alexander Manu, 2016-05-23 Disruptive Business is a provocative and insightful redefinition of innovation as an outcome of human behaviour a dynamic in constant change requiring the shaping of new responses in business and the economy Alexander Manu believes that organizations must treat innovation not as a process to be managed but as an outcome that changes people's lives. In Disruptive Business, he explains how innovation is the moment when human behaviour is changed by a particular invention, discovery, or event. This position challenges the current understanding of innovation as well as the current ecology in which innovation operates in organizations: its management methods, tools, language, focus, and metrics. The challenge extends to some of the labels currently applied to innovation typologies such as disruptive innovation, seen today as addressing purely the technological side of an invention rather than the more complex motivational and behavioural side. Alexander Manu considers that a disruption is not manifest in the moment a new technology is introduced. The disruption is the human being and manifest only when human motivation embraces the technology and uses it to modify and improve everyday life. Our acceptance and appropriation of new technologies creates the business disruption. Manu makes the case that successful innovation outcomes are answers to conscious or subconscious goals residing in human motivation and motivation starts in desire. This position is consistent with the history of innovations that have changed, improved, and reshaped human life and also consistent with their roots and ethos. Humans are a perpetually wanting animal bound to desire to seek media for a better self and to need innovation. In this dynamic, innovation is the constant and business is the variable. The role of business is to create the tools, objects, and services through which people can manifest what they want and who they are. The book provides a new perspective of current behavioural disruptions which are relevant to the continuity of business as well as a set of practical methodologies for business design aimed at creating innovation outcomes of value to users.
