Linking Government Data David Wood, 2011-11-12. Linking Government Data provides a practical approach to addressing common information management issues. The approaches taken are based on international standards of the World Wide Web Consortium. Linking Government Data gives both the costs and benefits of using linked data techniques with government data, describes how agencies can fulfill their missions with less cost and recommends how intra agency culture must change to allow public presentation of linked data. Case studies from early adopters of linked data approaches in international governments are presented in the last section of the book. Linking Government Data is designed as a professional book for those working in Semantic Web research and standards development and for early adopters of Semantic Web standards and techniques. Enterprise architects, project managers and application developers in commercial, not-for-profit and government organizations concerned with scalability, flexibility and robustness of information management systems will also find this book valuable. Students focused on computer science and business management will also find value in this book.

GIS for Business and Service Planning Paul A. Longley, Graham Clarke, 1996-02-14. GIS for Business and Service Planning. Edited by Paul Longley, Graham Clarke. The field of geographical information systems (GIS) is developing rapidly, finding applications in an ever widening range of commercial contexts. This volume examines the practical use of GIS for business and service planning. It considers ways in which GIS may be customised to meet specific user requirements and tackle the applied research challenges of the late 1990s. GIS for Business and Service Planning introduces the management analysis and modelling of information within GIS and considers some of the basic problems and pitfalls that can occur in practice. It covers the major topics of geodemographics and how geographical information can be manipulated and merged into business application databases. It discusses the relative merits of customised versus proprietary solutions to business application databases. It examines the range of consultancy applications of GIS for business using international case studies, assessing how recent applications have benefited from research developments. It critically assesses GIS in the market place and evaluates different GIS strategies. GIS for Business and Service Planning is essential reading for GIS professionals, marketers, GIS students and management scientists.
