Dietary Modulation of Cell Signaling Pathways Zigang Dong,Young-Joon Surh,2008-09-26 A consequence of rapid progress in the science of nutrigenomics and nutrigenetics is the substantial accumulation of data covering nutritional modulation of gene expression at the cellular and subcellular levels Current research is increasingly focused on the role of nutrition and diet in modifying oxidative damage in the progression of disease

mTOR Pathway and mTOR Inhibitors in Cancer Therapy Vitaly A. Polunovsky,Peter J. Houghton,2010-07-23 The main objective of this book is to provide an up to date survey of the rapidly advancing field of cancer therapy Moreover since our knowledge in this area rapidly evolves some data have got obsolete during the process of book editing Our understanding of the mechanisms involved in cancer genesis and progression underwent unprecedented expansion during the last decade opening a new era of cancer treatment targeted therapy The surge in this area results in no small part from studies conducted jointly by basic health scientists and clinical investigators It is our hope that this book will help foster even further collaboration between investigators in these two disciplines The target of rapamycin TOR was first identified in Saccharomyces cerevisiae and subsequently in mammals mTOR as a conserved atypical serine threonine kinase In mammalian cells mTOR exists in at least two multi protein complexes that have critical roles in regulating cellular homeostasis and survival As with many other areas of science discovery of TOR signaling was fortuitous Rapamycin was isolated as a product of the soil bacteria Streptomyces hygroscopicus identified in a soil sample taken from the island of Rapa Nui Easter Island Rapamycin was first discovered to be a potent antifungal agent and next as an immune suppressive drug It was only later that it was found to be active as an antitumor agent in non clinical models although it was not developed for this indication The history of rapamycin presents one of the first examples of chemical genetics pathogenesis clinical features prevention and therapy It specifically addresses the relationship between hemostatic systems and cancer thus providing a unique and much needed focus All of the contributors are acknowledged specialists in their fields and have experience conducting large clinical trials in oncology and thrombosis Their discussions cover all aspects of the topic from long term complications to cancer surgery It will be of interest to general practitioners internists oncologists hematologists and all physicians involved in the management of cancer patients Proteolysis in the Interstitial Space

Salvatore V. Pizzo, Roger L. Lundblad, Monte S. Willis, 2016-08-19 Most clinical laboratory tests utilize interstitial and extravascular such as blood urine cerebral spinal fluid CSF and saliva For example CSF is monitored in the context of cancer for both diagnostic and therapeutic reasons And yet our understanding of the makeup of interstitial fluids their relationships to disease as well as their commercial importance in therapeutics and diagnostics remains rudimentary Although sometimes perceived as static interstitial and extravascular fluids are surprisingly dynamic More than half of serum albumin is in the extravascular space These fluids move rapidly between the intravascular and extravascular spaces one entire plasma volume is exchanged very nine hours In the first half of the book the authors cover fundamental concepts of interstitial fluids including their composition and function They then further review the mechanisms by which interstitial fluids are regulated characterizing the importance of hyaluronan a major constituent of interstitial spaces and an a component of synovial fluid and outlining the regulation of proteolysis in the interstitial space In the second half of the book the authors focus on the coagulation system This system has been studied extensively in the context of vascular spaces But many of its components exist in the interstitial spaces Chapters are devoted to the fibrinolytic system kallikrein matrix metalloproteinases coagulation factors and protease inhibitors all are interstitial By covering a unique array of topics with broad application to biomedical scientists this book expands our understanding of the importance of interstitial spaces and the fluids that move through and reside in this extravascular environment Ferri's Clinical Advisor 2022, E-Book Fred F.
