Communication Ethics Kathleen Glenister Roberts, Ronald C. Arnett, 2008 This volume occasions a dialogue between major authors in the field who engage in a conversation on cosmopolitanism and provinciality from a communication ethics perspective There is no consensus on what constitutes communication ethics cosmopolitanism or provinciality the task is more modest and diverse and began with contributors being asked what the bias of their work suggests or offers for understanding the theme Communication Ethics Between Cosmopolitanism and Provinciality Rather than responding authoritatively each essay acknowledges the contributor's own work This book offers no answers but invites a conversation that is more akin to a beginning a joining an admission that there is more than me us or my kind of people theory or wisdom The book will be an excellent resource for instructors and for upper level undergraduate and graduate courses in communication

Communicating Marginalized Masculinities Ronald L. Jackson II, Jamie E. Moshin, 2012-11-27 For years research concerning masculinities has explored the way that men have dominated exploited and dismantled societies asking how we might make sense of marginalized masculinities in the context of male privilege This volume asks not only how terms such as men and masculinity are socially defined and culturally instantiated but also how the media has constructed notions of masculinity that have kept minority masculinities on the margins Essays explore marginalized masculinities as communicated through film television and new media visiting representations and marginalized identity politics while also discussing the dangers and pitfalls of a media pedagogy that has taught audiences to ignore sidestep and stereotype marginalized group realities While dominant portrayals of masculine versus feminine characters pervade numerous television and film examples this collection examines heterosexual and queer military and civilian as well as Black Japanese Indian White and Latino masculinities offering a variance in masculinities and confronting male privilege as represented on screen appealing to a range of disciplines and a wide scope of readers

Performing Black Masculinity Bryant Keith Alexander, 2006-07-24 This is a remarkable set of linked essays on the African American male experience Alexander picks a number of settings that highlight Black male interaction sexuality and identity the student teacher interaction the black barbershop drag queen performances the funeral eulogy From these he builds a theory of Black masculine identity using auto ethnography and ideas of performance as his base

Male black identity in selected works by Langston Hughes Sarah Wienand, 2014-03-24 Bachelor Thesis from the year 2013 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 2.0 University of Wuppertal language English abstract Throughout many years African Americans have been struggling in defining and constructing their identity especially male African Americans had problems to build up self esteem and to reassure their cultural masculinity which was undermined by white men Not only does history confirm this struggle but so does literature In literature many different aspects about male black identity and their struggle for identity can be found However one of the most important authors in this context is Langston Hughes In his works he focuses on the urban life of African Americans and the problems they had to face because of oppression and racism evoked by white Americans Furthermore Hughes wanted to record and interpret the lives of the common black folk their thoughts and habits and dreams their struggle for political freedom and economic well being

Jemie 1 By doing so in his writings he took this struggle for and negotiation of racial identity to another level in developing a unique form of expression In this thesis I will concentrate on three major works by Langston Hughes Mulatto A Tragedy of the Deep South Simple speaks his mind and Not without laughter All three texts display emotional conflicts and the struggle for identity of African American men with simplicity and depth Tidwell 3 Furthermore all three protagonists have a rather low status in society which contributes according to Langston Hughes to their authenticity since they are the ones who represent the African American and thus their pursuit of identity of Tidwell 3 Moreover I am going to begin with a general overview of the male black identity and the struggle for an African American male perspective in a culture which is dominated by white American men Afterwards I will transfer this concept of male black identity to the three selected works by Langston Hughes and analyse in how far these texts engage in constructing their main characters in similar terms The next significant aspect will be concerned with the question in how far education is perceived as a part of this male black identity and in how far it supports the development of an African American male identity When having discussed the influence of education in the protagonists male black identity development I am going to turn to the topic of identity crisis

Balance David Wall Rice, 2008-01-01 Scholarly research and depictions within popular culture present black males largely on the basis of their being caricatures entities that extend not far beyond stereotypical celluloid televised explanations print articles and selective hip hop commentary Even within institutions and among individuals that are assumed to have the best interest of the black male at center there is often an inability to consider them past a faux orbit of one dimensionality Balance is unique in that it approaches Black males from a well rooted personality perspective within context and utilizes discourse analysis in attempts at advancing identity theory

Writing Manhood in Black and Yellow Daniel Y. Kim, 2005 This book is a comparative study of African American and Asian American representations of masculinity and race focusing primarily on the major works of two influential figures Ralph Ellison and Frank Chin

Black Masculinity and the U.S. South Riché Richardson, 2010-01-25 This pathbreaking study of region race and gender reveals how we underestimate the South's influence on the formation of black masculinity at the national level Many negative stereotypes of black men often contradictory ones have emerged from the ongoing historical traumas initiated by slavery Are black men emasculated and submissive or hypersexed and violent Nostalgic representations of black men have arisen as well think of the philosophical hardworking sharecropper or the abiding upright preacher To complicate matters says Rich Richardson blacks themselves appropriate these images for purposes never intended by their mostly white progenitors Starting with such well known caricatures as the Uncle Tom and the black rapist Richardson investigates a range of pathologies of black masculinity that derive ideological force from their associations with the South Military policy black liberation discourse and contemporary rap she argues are just some of the instruments by which egregious pathologies of black masculinity in southern history have been sustained Richardson s sources are eclectic and provocative including Ralph Ellison s fiction Charles Fuller s plays Spike Lee s films Huey Newton s and Malcolm X s political rhetoric the O J Simpson discourse and the music production of Master P the Cash Money Millionaires and other Dirty South rappers Filled with new insights into the region s role in producing hierarchies of race and gender in and beyond their African American contexts this new study points the way toward more epistemological frameworks for southern literature southern studies and gender studies

Radically Coming to be Marvice Darrle Marcus, 2015 Human sexualities typically evoke thoughts and ideas of physical coupling and eroticism Extant research on the psychological underpinnings of human sexualities support such limited conceptualizations The interpretations however affect the lives of African descended men in a manner that magnifies and further solidifies the embodiment of what has been constructed as the Other Absent from the available fund of knowledge on African American men s identity and sexual conduct is critical discussions about racialized humanity its influence on mental health and intersubjective processes Specifically quantitative logic is often purported to be objective and a safeguard against biases or social factors viewed as metaphysical This is an example of race neutrality that supports the strategic invisibility of whiteness and the insidious racialization of nonwhite men The slippery slope of human desire and the politics of sex uality warrant an interdisciplinary synthesis of various forms of scholarship to generate novel insights and questions about current social epistemologies

Sexual Discretion Jeffrey Q. McCune, Jr., 2014-03-07 African American men who have sex with men while maintaining a heterosexual lifestyle in public are attracting increasing interest from both the general media and scholars Commonly referred to as down low or DL men many continue to have relationships with girlfriends and wives who remain unaware of their same sex desires and in much of the media DL men have been portrayed as carriers of HIV who spread the virus to black women Sexual Discretion explores the DL phenomenon offering refreshingly innovative analysis of the significance of media space and ideals of black masculinity in understanding down low communities In Sexual Discretion Jeffrey Q McCune Jr provides the first in depth examination of how the social expectations of black masculinity intersect and complicate expressions of same sex affection and desire Within these underground DL communities men aren t as highly policed and thus are able to maintain their public roles as properly masculine McCune draws from sources that range from R and from E Lynn Harris s contemporary sexual passing novels to McCune s own interviews and ethnography in nightclubs and online chat rooms Sexual Discretion details the causes pressures and negotiations driving men who rarely disclose their intimate secrets Building Multiracial Fortunes Guy E. Mount, 2011 This thesis examines the post emancipation formation of African American identity masculinity and authenticity through the white skinned multiracial body of T Thomas Fortune the premier African American newspaper editor of the Gilded Age and Progressive Era It argues that multiracial African American men like Fortune were central to the collective construction of an authentic black male identity between 1883 and 1907 Often functioning as foil characters in elaborate racial performances which characterized them as less authentic less masculine and more subject to racial disloyalty Fortune and others who visually presented a racially ambiguous body challenged this narrowly drawn and internally imposed paradigm of orthodox black male authenticity while resisting its implications Emerging from chattel slavery in Florida and surviving a particularly violent strand of Reconstruction in Marianna County Fortune relocated to New York City where he harnessed the power of the press to fight white racism and eventually enter the debates over a rapidly crystallizing image of black masculinity In doing so he attempted to inscribe an alternative political meaning to interracial sexuality the bodies of white skinned African Americans and indeed the very notion of authentic black manhood itself All of these projects were informed by Fortune s deeply rooted anxiety regarding his own white skinned body and what it signified within the black community Ultimately this formulation and the ongoing struggle over the meaning of blackness was acted out by Fortune and others at the expense of black women This process of defining black authenticity and black manhood effectively established a firm patriarchal order within elite African American discourse as it attempted to assert black manhood by controlling the sexualized bodies of black women while silencing their voices in the public sphere In this way white skinned African American male bodies can serve as a useful example of the complex problematic of what it means to be a gendered black subject in early Jim Crow America What emerges in the end are complicated dynamically engaged subjects trying to grasp at an authentic stable identity that was always shifting transforming and at times vanishing from sight The four chapters found here cover topics such as the emerging black nationalist movement segregated insane asylums the interracial marriage of Frederick Douglass to Helen Pitts in 1884 and the internal debates over the use of the terms Negro colored or Afro American to self identify African Americans Methodologically this thesis draws inspiration from Lacanian psychoanalysis the linguistic work of Jacques Derrida and the conception of the body sexuality and decentralized power networks as envisioned by Michel Foucault world Hailing from diverse scholarly fields all contributors are affiliated with The Color of New Media a scholarly collective based at the University of California Berkeley The Color of New Media explores the intersections of new media studies critical race theory gender and women s studies and postcolonial studies The essays in identity consider topics such as the social justice movements organized through BlackLivesMatter Ferguson and SayHerName the controversies around WhyIStayed and CancelColbert Twitter use in India and Africa the integration of hashtags such as nohomo and onfleek that have become part of everyday online vernacular and other ways in which Twitter has been used by for and against women people of color LGBTQ and Global South communities Collectively the essays in this volume offer a critically interdisciplinary view of how and why social media has been at the heart of US and global political discourse for over a decade

Writing Manhood in Black and Yellow Daniel Kim,2022 This book examines cultural representations of African American and Asian American masculinity focusing primarily on the major works of two influential figures Ralph Ellison and Frank Chin It highlights the language of gender and sexuality that writers use to depict the psychological injuries inflicted by racism on men of color a language that relies on metaphors of emasculation The book focuses on how homosexuality comes to function as a powerful symbol for a feminizing racism and explains why this disturbing symbolism proves to be so rhetorically and emotionally effective This study also explores the influential concept of literature that these writers promote a view of writing as a cultural and political activity capable of producing the most virile and racially authentic forms of manhood In comparing African American and Asian American writings this book offers the first scholarly account of how black and yellow conceptions of masculinity are constructed in relation to each other
