A Grammar of Atong Seino van Breugel,2014-01-30 Atong is a Tibeto Burman language spoken in Northeast India and Bangladesh Seino van Breugel provides a deep and thorough coverage and analysis of all major areas of the grammar which makes this book of great interest and value to general linguists and typologists as well as area specialists. Alongside an Atong English dictionary and five fully glossed Atong texts recorded during extensive fieldwork, this work also provides a sizable ethnolinguistic introduction to the speakers and their culture. Of particular interest is the pragmatic approach taken for the grammatical analysis. Whereas the form of an utterance provides some clue as to its possible meaning, inference is always needed to arrive at the most relevant interpretation within the context in which the utterance occurs. This is a very important book for South Asian and Sino-Tibetan linguistic scholarship. Of the 200 languages of Northeast India, only a handful have been documented; the present work brings the number of full-scale modern grammars for these languages to six. Thus it represents a unique and extremely valuable contribution. Professor Scott DeLancey, University of Oregon. This is a solid academic work which makes a huge contribution to the field. There is no other detailed account of this particular language, and it is highly doubtful that anyone will write something more comprehensive in the future. Dr. Willem de Reuse, University of North Texas.

Hermeneutics, Linguistics, and the Bible Stanley E. Porter, 2024-01-25. The volume presents Stanley E. Porter's considered thoughts and reflections on key questions of meaning and context, addressing the problems of biblical interpretation and how a close collaboration between hermeneutics and linguistics can help to solve them. The chapters display Porter's work in both fields, examining how hermeneutics functions as a field in modern biblical studies and how the quest for meaning in biblical texts is underpinned by the study of linguistics. The volume focuses on context for understanding the meanings of biblical texts. Porter suggests that linguists can learn more from the philosophical questions around meaning that hermeneutics apply in their study of biblical texts and that there is more fruitful work to be done in the field of hermeneutics using insights from linguistics.

The Linguistic Structure of Modern English Laurel J. Brinton, Donna Brinton, 2010. This text is for advanced undergraduate and graduate students interested in contemporary English, especially those whose primary area of interest is English as a second language, primary or secondary school education, English stylistics, theoretical and applied linguistics, or speech pathology. The emphasis is on empirical facts of English rather than any particular theory of linguistics; the text does not assume any background in language or linguistics. In this newly revised edition, numerous example sentences are taken from the Corpus of Contemporary American English. A full glossary of key terms, an additional chapter on pedagogy, and new sections on cognitive semantics and politeness have been added. Other changes include completely updated print references, web links to sites of special interest and relevance, and a revised reader-friendly layout. A companion website that includes a complete workbook with self-testing exercises and a comprehensive list of web links accompanies the book. The website can be found at the following address: <http://dx.doi.org/10.1075/z.156>.

Linguistic Supertypes Per Durst-Andersen, 2011-02-28 The book offers a completely new view of language and of languages such as Russian Chinese Bulgarian Georgian Danish and English by dividing them into three supertypes on the basis of a step by step examination of their relationship to perception and cognition their representation of situations and their use in oral and written discourse The dynamic processing of visual stimuli involves three stages input experience intake understanding and outcome a combination The very choice among three modalities of existence gives a language a certain voice either the voice of reality based on situations the speaker's voice involving experiences or the hearer's voice grounded on information This makes grammar a prime index all symbols are static and impotent and need a vehicle i.e. grammar which can bring them to the proper point of reference Language is shown to be a living organism with a determinant category aspect mood or tense which conquers territory from other potential competitors trying to create harmony between verbal and nominal categories It is demonstrated that the communication processes are different in the three supertypes although in all three cases the speaker must choose between a public and a private voice before the grammar is put into use
