A detailed anatomical diagram of the human central nervous system. The main illustration shows a lateral view of the brain with the cerebral cortex, cerebellum, and brainstem. The spinal cord is shown extending downwards from the brainstem, with numerous spinal nerves branching out. A smaller inset diagram at the bottom right shows a cross-section of the brain, highlighting the cerebrum (colored green), cerebellum (colored blue), and brainstem (colored yellow). Labels with leader lines point to various parts of the brain and spinal cord, though the text is small and difficult to read.

This diagram illustrates the internal anatomy of the human eye and the process of light refraction. The main cross-section shows the cornea, iris, lens, vitreous body, and retina. Light rays from an object are shown entering the eye and being focused onto the retina. Below the main diagram, two smaller diagrams show the eye's shape in different states (contracted and relaxed) to demonstrate how the lens focuses light. Labels in German identify various parts of the eye, such as the cornea, iris, lens, vitreous body, and retina.

An anatomical illustration of the human respiratory system. It shows the trachea (windpipe) leading from the larynx down to the bronchi, which branch into the two lungs. The lungs are shown in a cross-section, revealing the internal branching structure of the bronchial tree. The heart is visible in the center, between the two lungs.

This diagram illustrates the anatomy of the human ear. The external ear (pinna) is shown on the right, leading into the ear canal. The middle ear is depicted in the center, showing the ossicles (malleus, incus, stapes) and the eustachian tube. The internal ear (cochlea and vestibular system) is shown on the left. Labels indicate various parts of the ear, including the pinna, ear canal, eardrum (tympanic membrane), ossicles, and cochlea. A small inset shows a cross-section of the cochlea.
