

mageba modular expansion joints the benchmark for large movements

TENSA®MODULAR Types LR and LR-LS

Parts and components

The joint's individual lamella beams ① rest on and slide along support bars ②, and are connected to these by stirrups ③ through which the support bars pass. The support bars span between support bar boxes ④ in the deck structures at each side of the movement gap. Both support bars and lamella beams are supported by high-quality polymer elements and prestressed by elastomeric components. The movements of the lamella beams relative to each other and along the support bars are regulated by control springs. Sealing profiles ⑤, which connect the lamella beams to each other and to the joint's edge profiles ⑥, make the system enduringly watertight.
