customs and habits focusing on beliefs and practices related to health and healing and on notions concerning magic These form Kelly believes a core of folk culture which has survived tenaciously in the rural areas and on the outskirts of the cities among mestizo families of scant education and limited economic resources These people are well acquainted with simple matter of fact illnesses which result from natural causes and which respond to treatment by herbal and other home remedies or by modern medicines But they also recognize the evil eye and the emotional upset known as fright They are thoroughly familiar with the ever present danger of ailments which are not natural and God sent but which are deliberately inflicted by an enemy through the artifice of a sorcerer or a spiritualist Such instigated illnesses may take any form from a cold in the head to a false pregnancy If a person suspects that poor health results from such malevolence he or she spurns Western medicine and looks instead to the witch or to the spiritualist as the only hope of a cure El Cuije pays an annual quota from community funds to make available modern health services provided by the government But community funds are similarly drawn upon to provide medical attention for those who repair to the sorcerers Once a week the village truck takes all presumed witchcraft victims to a nearby town where they receive clinical treatment from professional sorcerers Kelly sees little that is genuinely indigenous in the beliefs and practices described many of them demonstrably result from infiltration from the Old World in the years following the Spanish Conquest She considers spiritualistic curing important in northern Mexico and many other parts of Latin America in some detail but the specific outlines of its history in northern Mexico still awaited clarification at the time of her research
