Motivation as a Factor in Second Language Acquisition ,2018-01-09 Seminar paper from the year 2017 in the subject Didactics for the subject English Miscellaneous grade 1 3 University of Duisburg Essen Department of Anglophone Studies language English abstract The limits of my language are the limits of my world Ludwig Wittgenstein Ludwig Wittgenstein was a philosopher of the 19th century his quotation underlines the importance of second language acquisition We live in a globalised world where language is the most important way of communication People all over the world share their cultures and beliefs through their language and interact with each other Aside from social factors language plays an important economic role Nowadays it is not enough to speak one language many employers prefer employees who are multilingual Moreover many children are growing up multilingual which is regarded as a huge advantage In larger terms they are seen as positive result of our globalised world Besides this English is the world language and connects the world

Many schools in foreign countries started offering English lessons in primary schools to increase the number of fluent English speakers. According to this, many teachers try to optimise their lessons and way of teaching. Second language acquisition has become a huge field for further research. Theories and models are getting improved in order to create better learning environments and help teachers to use authentic and optimised methods in their lessons. Many theories and models underline the significance of motivation during language acquiring processes. But how important is motivation in second language acquisition and what effect does it have while acquiring a new language? This term paper will give a brief definition of the term motivation. Then it will present some important and influential motivation theories in order to discuss the influences on second language acquisition. Finally, it will answer the question: what teachers can do to increase the motivation in language classrooms. Attitudes and Motivation in Second-language Learning Robert C. Gardner, Wallace E.

Lambert, 1972 Second Language Learning Before Adulthood Vanessa De Wilde, Claire Goriot, 2022-10-24. Researchers have looked into the role of individual differences in second language learning and found that differences between learners in areas such as language aptitude, language learning motivation, and exposure to the language influence second language learning. Most of this research concerned adults. Far fewer studies have addressed the role of individual differences in second language learning of young learners. As second language learning programmes tend to start earlier than before and children are nowadays frequently exposed to a foreign language in social settings such as online games and social media, studying the role of individual differences in young learners can contribute both to SLA theories and to evidence-based L2 education. This book discusses recent findings concerning the role of individual differences in language learning in young learners. The chapters in the book concern different topics linked to internal individual differences such as language aptitude, motivation, attitude, and external individual differences such as exposure and type of instruction, the relative contribution of internal and external factors to language learning, and the interplay between the two types of individual differences. Multiple Perspectives on the Self in SLA Sarah Mercer, Marion Williams, 2014-02-03. Instead of viewing different perspectives on the self as competing with each other and considering one perspective on the self as being inherently better than another, this book takes the view that a fuller, more comprehensive picture of the self in SLA can be gained by examining and combining insights from different perspectives. This original collection of papers thus attempts to provide a thorough overview of the ways in which the self can be conceptualised in SLA contexts. The editors have brought together a diverse range of theoretical perspectives on the self to allow the reader to appreciate the insights that each approach contributes to overall understandings of the self in the domain of second language acquisition and foreign language learning. The Importance of Motivation in Second Language Acquisition, 2020-06-24. Seminar paper from the year 2020 in the subject Speech Science / Linguistics, grade 2.3, University of Cologne, language: English, abstract: This paper will look at one important factor in mastering the acquisition of a second language: motivation. It will be argued that the development of positive attitudes and motivation has a great impact on an individual's success in second language learning. Evidence for these claims will be based on different studies including one by Moyer 1999 on highly motivated subjects learning German and another by Pfenninger and Singleton 2016 which compares data from motivation questionnaires and language experience essays completed by 200 Swiss learners of English at both the beginning and the end of secondary school. Various researchers believe that age is the one factor which determines whether a subject is able to master a second language to a native-like level or not. However, in this paper, it is argued that other factors such as motivational matters also play a vital role in the acquisition of a second language. If indeed this is the case, different concepts of motivation need to be taken into consideration.

Competition in Second Language Classrooms Nourollah Zarrinabadi, 2025-05-10. This book offers an in-depth exploration of the causes and consequences of competition among language learners with a particular focus on understanding the intricate relationships between competitiveness, beliefs about competition, and other psychological variables pertinent to language learning such as motivation, anxiety, and mindsets. The initial chapters provide a comprehensive review of various competition theories and the latest empirical research on competition across diverse domains including education and the workplace. Subsequently, the book qualitatively investigates the linguistic, psychological, educational, cultural, and contextual factors that contribute to competition in English language classrooms. It also delves into the potential psychological, educational, and personal outcomes of such competition in second language L2 learning environments. Furthermore, this monograph scrutinizes the interplay between competition-related variables and the motivational and emotional dimensions of L2 learning. In its concluding sections, the book offers practical insights for language educators, guiding them on how to effectively manage competition among students to mitigate its adverse effects while leveraging its potential to enhance language learning and development.

Attitudes, Motivation and Achievement in the Learning of Spanish as a Second Language Joaquin S. Vila Barreto, 1983

Secondary Education Issues and Challenges Hans V. Knudsen, 2008. Secondary education is the final stage of compulsory education preceded by primary education and followed by higher education. It is characterised by transition from the typically compulsory comprehensive primary education for minors to the optional selective tertiary, post-secondary, or higher education, e.g. university, vocational school, for adults. Depending on the system, schools for this period, or a part of it, may be called secondary schools, high schools, gymnasiums, lyceums, middle schools, colleges, vocational schools, and preparatory schools, and the exact meaning of any of these varies between the systems. The exact boundary between primary and secondary education varies from country to country and even within them, but is generally around the fifth to the tenth year of education. Secondary education occurs mainly during the teenage years. In the United States and Canada, primary and secondary education together are sometimes referred to as K-12 education. The purpose of secondary education can be to give common knowledge to prepare for either higher education or vocational education, or to train directly for a profession. This new book presents the latest research in the field Resources in Education ,1998-07 Attitudes and Motivation in Second Language Acquisition T. Q. Penney,1990 Motivation and Second language learning Tanja Lins,2006-01-07 Seminar paper from the year 2005 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Linguistics grade 86% High Distinction Monash University Melbourne School of Linguistics course Second Language Acquisition language English abstract Why do people learn second languages Why do for example Australians study Japanese or Korean people study French The answers to these questions are important according to Rebecca Oxford 1994 because motivation is considered by many researchers to be one of the main determining factors in success in developing a second or foreign language p 12 Gardner even claims L2 motivation to be the primary factor in L2 learning in his socio educational model 1994 p 361 Therefore an investigation of the components of motivation and the influence of motivation on L2 learning seems quite reasonable This essay will focus on the concept of motivation in second language learning Initially the definition of the term motivation shall be discussed and this will be followed by an identification of the key terms Then the attention shall be drawn to research results concerning the importance of motivation as influencing second language learning The essay will discuss Gardners quantitative approach and a recent research of Ushioda shall be taken into account that seeks to provide an alternative qualitative approach This approach focuses on students beliefs and thinkings rather than on measurable and observable activity A final chapter will focus on implications for teaching Attitudes and Language Colin Baker,1992 The book aims to establish the concept of attitudes as more central to the study of minority and majority languages The strong tradition of attitude theory and research from social psychology is made relevant to language restoration and decay Original research shows how attitude to bilingualism is conceptually distinct from attitude to a specific language A piece of research in Wales investigates the origins of language attitudes in individual differences and in environmental attributes
