Crisis, Conflict and Celebration Katarzyna Kajdanek,Anna Bednarczyk,Rui Carvalho,2025-02-03 This book illuminates how the profound challenges faced by contemporary societies over the past few decades encompassing climate change and other environmental risks global health threats warfare and mass migration manifest themselves in European cities The chapters bring cutting edge ethnographic studies which address these complex issues through three key conceptual dimensions of urban life crisis conflict and celebration The concept of crisis is critically explored in its various economic political and cultural dimensions affecting urban residents in multiple social and spatial aspects of their lives Crises often lead to conflicts dynamic processes that give rise to interest groups and complex social landscapes of resistance By examining conflicts in urban contexts the book uncovers the power dynamics and vulnerabilities emerging during turbulent times Crises and conflicts also present opportunities for urban transformation and regeneration bringing underlying beliefs and norms into question paving the way for new social dynamics within urban environments These conflictual spaces can therefore become arenas for celebration of urbanity where communities express resilience cultural identity and collective solidarity As well as providing new insights into the present and future of European cities and the pivotal role of urban areas as centers of social change contestation and community building the book provides an important methodological contribution through innovative qualitative research in a diverse range of European urban areas A Comparative Political Ecology of Exurbia Laura E. Taylor, Patrick T. Hurley, 2016-05-26 This book is about politics and planning outside of cities where urban political economy and planning theories do not account for the resilience of places that are no longer rural and where local communities work hard to keep from ever becoming urban By examining exurbia as a type of place that is no longer simply rural or only tied to the economies of global resources e g mining forestry and agriculture we explore how changing landscapes are planned and designed not to be urban that is to look function and feel different from cities and suburbs in spite of new home development and real estate speculation The book s authors contend that exurbia is defined by the persistence of rural economies the conservation of rural character and protection of natural ecological systems all of which are critical components of the contentious local politics that seek to limit growth Comparative political ecology is used as an organizing concept throughout the book to describe the nature of exurban areas in the U S and Australia although exurbs are common to many countries The essays each describe distinctive case studies with each chapter using the key concepts of competing rural capitalisms and uneven environmental management to describe the politics of exurban change This systematic analysis makes the processes of exurban change easier to see and understand Based on these case studies seven characteristics of exurban places are identified rural character access local economic change ideologies of nature changes in land management coalition building and land use planning This book will be of interest to those who study planning conservation and land development issues especially in areas of high natural amenity or environmental value There is no political ecology book quite like this neither one solely focused on cases from the developed world in this case the United States and Australia nor one that specifically harnesses different case studies from multiple areas to develop a central organizing perspective of landscape change Pathways to a Carbon-Free Future Through Advanced Nuclear
