With our modern world relying more and more on Internet based technologies this timely book takes a renewed look at the ever increasing digital divide between developing and more technologically advanced countries and the resulting impacts on achieving the Sustainable Development Goals SDGs Jeffrey James conducts a methodological and conceptual review of the patterns and shortfalls arising from the technological divide between countries recommending a more proactive response for countries that are struggling to minimise the gap National Economic Recovery, Reform and Development Plan 2003-2006 Solomon Islands. Dept. of National Reform and Planning,2003 The national economic recovery reform and development plan 2003 2006 is a medium term development strategy policy document of the Solomon Islands government Its purpose is to set out government strategies policies and action to be taken for economic recovery social restoration reform and development during the plan period The plan sets out the immediate tasks for economic recovery and social restoration and those tasks for rebuilding basic economic and social infrastructure as well as rebuilding the foundations for sustainable economic growth and human resources development in the Solomon Islands The Pacific Islands and the USA R. G. Crocombe,1995 The world s most powerful nation and more than a dozen of the world s smallest have been interacting for 200 years Beginning with whaling in the 1700 s it has continued through many trades investment eduction churches media diplomacy and strategic issues As significant as the movement of Americans to the Pacific is that of 150 000 Pacific Islanders to the USA This important book documents the growing interaction with the USA to the pinnacle of involvement in World War II The importance of USA to the Pacific Islands remained high until the end of the 1980 s but has declined since then on almost every dimension While USA will remain significant for the Pacific Islands its relative profile will continue to decline Back cover Local, Traditional and Indigenous Food Systems in the 21st Century to Combat Obesity, Undernutrition and Climate Change, 2nd edition Rebecca Kanter,Sofia Boza,Gina Kennedy,2023-07-31 Traditional and indigenous food systems have existed for centuries and were in balance with local food supplies globally However between the mid 20th and early 21st century the green revolution dramatically altered food production which in turn affected the inclusivity of traditional production systems within food systems and subsequently traditional dietary intakes This change was accompanied by lifestyle changes and spurred a global nutrition transition Today the world faces a global syndemic of obesity undernutrition and climate change A new call to action to create food systems that nourish people and sustain the planet is needed

Traditional and indigenous food systems have long been recognized as systems that can both support good human nutrition as well as maintain a balance with nature. There is an underutilized knowledge base around traditional and indigenous food systems. This includes the knowledge of nutritious species, traditional culinary preparations and cultural practices. Greater agricultural production of underutilized species can result in more sustainable agricultural and food systems which can also help improve livelihoods and food security. Traditional and indigenous cultural practices with respect to both land and water management as well as culinary practices contribute to both sustainable food production and consumption. These practices require a greater evidence base in order to be incorporated into public health nutrition initiatives related to improving dietary quality such as food based dietary guidelines for example. An increased focus on the importance of local traditional and indigenous food systems and nutrition could therefore help countries to improve human nutrition and ideally help mitigate the global syndemic of obesity, undernutrition and climate change. This Research Topic will focus on documenting diverse local food systems and promoting elements within them that can help improve nutrition and health both human and planetary in various ways including the livelihood development of knowledge holders.

Development Problems and Prospects in Pacific Islands States Biman C. Prasad, Kartik Chandra Roy, 2007. Pacific Island countries are undergoing fundamental political and economic changes due to the process of globalisation. Many of them are struggling to come to grips with the global economic challenges of participating in a world of freer trade. Their smallness, distance from the major markets and vulnerability to natural disasters presents special challenges. Globalisation, however, also provides a window of opportunity for some of them to improve their economic growth performance through increasing exports, investment and technological advancement and labour mobility. This book deals with a number of important issues relevant for improving the economic growth performances of the Pacific Island countries. Good governance, developing appropriate and quality institutions to promote investment and exports are major challenges for most of them. In addition, the volume also provides case studies discussing the role of foreign aid, remittances and labour mobility, role of the agricultural sector, role of the informal sector, management of public finances and the state of the public sector reform.
