Newberry,Eric Jumper,2004 On 17 December 1903 at Kitty Hawk NC the Wright brothers succeeded in achieving controlled flight in a heavier than air machine This feat was accomplished by them only after meticulous experiments and a study of the work of others before them like Sir George Cayley Otto Lilienthal and Samuel Langley The first evidence of the academic community becoming interested in human flight is found in 1883 when Professor J J Montgomery of Santa Clara College conducted a series of glider tests Seven years later in 1890 Octave Chanute presented a number of lectures to students of Sibley College Cornell University entitled Aerial Navigation This book is a collection of papers solicited from U S universities or institutions with a history of programs in Aerospace Aeronautical engineering There are 69 institutions covered in the 71 chapters This collection of papers represents an authoritative story of the development of educational programs in the nation that were devoted to human flight Most of these programs are still in existence but there are a few papers covering the history of programs that are no longer in operation documented in Part I as well as the rapid expansion of educational programs relating to aeronautical engineering that took place in the 1940s Part II is devoted to the four schools that were pioneers in establishing formal programs Part III describes the activities of the Guggenheim Foundation that spurred much of the development of programs in aeronautical engineering Part IV covers the 48 colleges and universities that were formally established in the mid 1930s to the present The military institutions are grouped together in the Part V and Part VI presents the histories of those programs that evolved from proprietary institutions Technical Aerodynamics K. Wind Energy Revolution Christopher C. Gillis, 2023-12-14 It may sound simple Fashion a set of blades attach them to a generator set the machine on top of a tower and let the wind do the work of creating electricity Not so Most of these attempts fail even with the availability of the latest technologies In Wind Energy Revolution Christopher C Gillis Sr examines the efforts to develop small wind generators for use at homes farms and ranches following the 1973 Arab Oil Embargo Wind machines were once featured prominently on farms and homesteads throughout the Midwest of the United States and Canada during the late 1910s through the early 1950s in areas that had no access to overhead electric power transmission lines As a result of rural America s connection to the power grid many of these pioneer wind electric machines fell victim to electrical power lines Interest in wind energy resurfaced in the early 1970s when energy shortages were created by the Arab Oil Embargo the rise of environmentalism and the move toward self sufficient off the grid living Early wind electric machines were dusted off and restored back into service while several former manufacturers reemerged and entrepreneurs developed new designs Political and societal interest in renewable energies wind and solar began to wane in the early 1980s and did not return until the late 1990s Even so the developments in the 1970s influenced how Americans subsequently viewed and used renewable power Wind Energy Revolution is a first of its kind comprehensive history for historians and anyone interested in wind as a viable renewable resource
