

What Does it Mean to be African?

5 pages | 1131 words

I never chose to be an African! I have never even contemplated the question of why I am an African. But here I am, a born and bred African for all my thirty years of life, and I couldn't be more proud to stand up and say that I am proudly an African.

Africa, the land of hope, enriched with a past filled with plenty of sadness and pain, but above all, filled with so much beauty and diversity. The vast resources this continent holds, from the diamonds to the gold and even more the incredible people that we know as Africans that are born and bred here that contribute to this land, the ones who invest their time, money and blood sweat and tears. The ones who speak the local languages, the ones whose hearts pump for Africa. Being African is more than skin deep, it has nothing to do with color or creed. The colour of our skin does not determine what makes us African because we as human beings are sharing experience in this body in this world. We are souls before we are bodies, what is inside us counts for more than that of the tone of our skin.

The past may never be wiped away from all the pain and suffering that occurred. As Thabo Mbeki said: "in its remembering, should teach us not and never to be inhuman again." If we could use our history to help us understand that dividing a nation as unique and as diverse as ours will never propel us forward. The only way forward is to go backward and evaluate how we as a nation can unite, with all of our differences to propel forward to make this and the next generations fruitful.

Togetherness is what we as Africans need to do more of, we must rise together to the challenges that affect us all, and find ways in how we can improve the quality of life in Africa for Africa's people.

Our hearts are the shape of Africa although there may be bends or cracks in the paths, that is where the Ubuntu light shines through. As Arch Bishop Desmond Tutu said about Ubuntu; "We are all connected. What unites us is our common humanity. I don't want to oversimplify things - but the suffering of a mother who has lost her child is not dependent on her nationality, ethnicity, or religion. White, black, rich, poor, Christian, Muslim, or Jew - pain is pain - joy is joy. In Southern Africa, we have a concept called Ubuntu - which is that you can't exist as a human being in isolation. You can't be human all by yourself. We think of ourselves far too frequently as just individuals, separated from one another, whereas what you do, what I do, affects the whole world. Taking that a step further, when you do good, it spreads that goodness; it is for the whole of humanity. When you suffer or cause suffering, humanity is diminished as a result."

The Geography of South Africa Jasper Knight, Christian M. Rogerson, 2018-10-03 This edited collection examines contemporary directions in geographical research on South Africa. It encompasses a cross-section of selected themes of critical importance, not only to the discipline of Geography in South Africa but also of relevance to other areas of the Global South. All chapters are original contributions providing a state-of-the-art research baseline on key themes in physical, human, and environmental geography and in understanding the changing geographical landscapes of modern South Africa. These contributions set the scene for an understanding of the relationships between modern South Africa and the wider contemporary world, including issues of sustainable development and growth in the Global South.

Utilisation of Research in South Africa's Research Institutes Leisl Joanne Neskakis, 2012 The overarching aim of this study is to analyse what researchers in South African higher education institutes and science councils mean by the term 'utilisation', i.e. what do researchers mean when they indicate that their research findings are being utilised? The data used to conduct this analysis is taken from a national survey conducted for the purpose of establishing the extent to which research findings in South Africa are utilised. The author played an active role in this survey component of the research conducted for the South African National Advisory Committee on Innovation (NACI). The study also covers the specific dynamics of the utilisation process: How does research utilisation occur, and what are the key variables in this process? In answering this question, the author discusses five prominent models of knowledge utilisation that have been put forward over the past three decades: The Two Communities theory of Norman Caplan (1979), The three models of policy research of Carol Weiss (1991), The Triple Helix model of Henry Etzkowitz and Loet Leydesdorff (1996), The three policy paradigms of Barry Bozeman (1994), and The Contingency Effectiveness model of Technology Transfer (CETT) of Barry Bozeman (2000).

Emerging Issues and Prospects in African E-Government Sodhi, Inderjeet Singh, 2014-07-31 Efforts have been made toward the application of electronic government in the developing world, yet questions of how to best implement governance systems and address concerns from officials and citizens alike remain to be answered. Emerging Issues and Prospects in African E-Government explores relevant practices, trends, and potential challenges facing fledgling governments in the digital era This book focuses on the establishment and maintenance of e government in various African countries providing critical insights for government bodies policymakers administrators and public sector researchers working in local state and national governments around the world Management and Economic Development in sub-Saharan Africa John O. Okpara,2007-04-20

One of the major challenges facing Sub Saharan African organizations today is how to effectively manage their resources Though the importance of effective management of organizational resources is generally acknowledged published research on the theme is disappointingly scarce This book hopes to contribute in filling the lacuna Contributors to the volume which is the first in a book series from African Journal of Business and Economic Research AJBER a peer reviewed triennial publication discuss various management issues in sub Saharan Africa such as employee motivation job satisfaction compensation organizational commitment ethics social responsibility and export management and the interplay between these and the effective management of an organization s resources They argue that effective management of organizational resources whether in the public or private sector promotes efficiency which in turn enhances the organization s ability to compete The contributors also offer valuable insights into why many organizations in sub Saharan Africa are inefficiently managed and offer desiderata for overcoming such challenges Mission Studies

Report United States. Congress. House, Addressing the Sexually Transmitted Infections Epidemic in the United States: A Sociomedical Perspective Christopher Williams,Laura Skrip,Darren Whitfield,Keith L. Gray,2023-12-04 Rates of sexually transmitted infections STIs have significantly increased in the United States Per capita estimates reveal approximately 68 million prevalent and 26 million incident STIs nationally Gonorrhea syphilis and chlamydia the three reportable STIs reached levels not seen in the last fifty years and this resurgence is concurrent with increasing antimicrobial resistance and a dearth of viable candidates in the vaccine pipeline A seminal report by the National Academies of Sciences Engineering and Medicine Sexually Transmitted Infections Adopting a Sexual Health Paradigm confirms that STIs rank among the most pressing and intractable public health threats Furthermore rising rates of STIs exact a substantial societal medical and economic burden that strain public health capacity which has been substantially debilitated in the wake of the Covid 19 pandemic STIs can have serious consequences for sexual reproductive and overall health Untreated syphilis for instance is directly implicated in neurological cardiovascular and dermatological disease Human papillomavirus is a known cause of cervical cancer and is the most common cancer among women globally Hepatitis B increases risk for cirrhosis and primary liver cancer Despite reductions in HIV transmission and improvements in prevention and treatment infections among women girls adolescents and mother to child transmission remain unacceptably high Marginalized racial ethnic minorities LGBTQ persons vulnerable at risk adolescents and young adults and other underrepresented populations are more susceptible to STIs as they negotiate an array of factors that can delay and even preclude access to preventive interventions. The United States spends substantially more on STI prevention and treatment yet it consistently bears a disproportionate burden of sexually transmitted infections compared to other Western industrialized nations. Access to healthcare erosion and diversion of public health capacity racism discrimination stigma substandard education and poverty have all been identified as important contributors to the trajectory of acute sexually transmitted infections. Furthermore upstream drivers such as national state and local public health policies have been associated with population level STI risk prevention and treatment and as such offer opportunities for ecological observational and multi level analyses to assess their direct and indirect impact on sexual health outcomes. In this thematic collection we aim to present an interdisciplinary collection of high quality articles centered on the premise that the rise of emerging and re emerging STIs can be attributed in part to a complex interaction of sociomedical factors beyond individual behavioral risk profiles. This Research Topic welcomes a variety of manuscript formats including original research brief reports systematic reviews and perspective manuscripts involving sociomedical factors social determinants of health health disparities infectious disease epidemiology and other drivers including health policies that act as barriers and facilitators of effective STI prevention and treatment. Manuscripts that examine structural community institutional interpersonal and broad individual factors linked to STIs are very well suited for this collection. Topic areas include but are not limited to Structural racism discrimination and stigma and their influence on prevention treatment and support services among vulnerable and marginalized populations Housing and income insecurity that impede sexual reproductive and overall health Biological factors that affect the spread of STIs including their asymptomatic nature and the influence of sex as a biological variable Intimate partner violence harassment and intimidation Substance abuse sex work sexual networks and normative sexual attitudes and beliefs that impede the adoption of preventive health promoting behaviors Priority populations including adolescents men who have sex with men youth who are LGBTQ and the incarcerated Impact of HIV pre exposure prophylaxis PrEP uptake on STI incidence Culturally specific biopsychosocial behavioral and community based STI interventions to treat and support those afflicted with STIs Community mobilization and community based organization to reduce STIs Community level prevalence of infectious agents Local and holistically integrated STI clinics Public health STI workforce capacity Health in All Policies HiAP approaches to STI prevention and treatment. Christopher Williams is the Senior Vice President and Director of Research at National Health Promotion Associates a private research and development firm that specializes in the development testing and dissemination of evidence based approaches to target behavioral risk factors associated with major chronic diseases violence accidents and preventable injuries. Macroeconomic Policy Formation in Africa - General Issues Karl Wohlmuth, Achim Gutowski, Magda Kandil, Tobias Knedlik, Osmund O. Uzor, 2014. This book examines new macroeconomic policy frameworks for Africa and it discusses the role of policies for generating sustainable and inclusive growth The responses of the macroeconomic policymakers in Africa to the Euro crisis and to the recent globalization trends are reviewed and analyzed The book also analyzes the economics of the Arab Spring countries by focusing on the socioeconomic conditions and the economic policy factors that have led to the Arab Spring events Highlighted are the cases of Egypt and Tunisia and the new strategic and policy frameworks in these countries after the democratic changes An agenda for comprehensive reforms is presented Series African Development Perspectives Yearbook Vol 16 Debating African Issues William G. Moseley, Kefa M. Otiso, 2022-09-14 This debate style textbook allows students to explore diverse well founded views on controversial African issues pushing them to go beyond superficial interpretations and complicate and ground their understanding of the continent From the positive images in the film Black Panther to the derogatory remarks of former American President Donald Trump the African continent often figures prominently in the collective global imagination This interdisciplinary collection covers 20 enduring and contemporary debates across a broad range of subjects affecting Africa from development and health to agriculture climate change and urbanization Each chapter has a pro and con view penned by a leading expert on the topic in an accessible and engaging style These contrasting views on each issue are framed by an introduction that helps the student contextualize the debate and draw on further resources Moreover they enable readers to deepen their understanding of the topic develop a more nuanced perspective and foster classroom debates This book is an excellent resource for Africa related courses across a range of disciplinary and interdisciplinary fields including African studies anthropology development studies economics environmental studies geography history international studies political science and public health

Southern African Development Community Land Issues Ben Chigara, 2013-03 This book constitutes volume one of a two volume examination of development community land issues in Southern Africa In this volume Ben Chigara undertakes a holistic inter disciplinary evaluation of the legitimacy of colonial and emergent post colonial rule property rights in affected States of the Southern African Development Community SADC It particularly focuses on intensifying litigation in national courts the SADC Tribunal and more recently the Washington based International Centre for the Settlement of Investment Disputes ICSID regarding counter claims to title to property The book examines cultural economic and political drivers at the core of SADC land issues focusing on their significance and potential to contribute to the discovery of a new sustainable land relations policy that guarantees social justice in the distribution of all the advantages and disadvantages relating to the allocation and use of land Chigara shows that persistent systematic administrative failures by pre colonial colonial and post colonial authorities have made for a very complex challenge that requires Solomonic tools that neither the Courts alone nor human rights centric morality alone could resolutely attend The book recommends a sophisticated systematic new approach to SADC land issues which is developed in volume two Re conceiving Property Rights in the New Millennium This book will be of great interest to students and researchers of Property and Conveyancing Law Human Rights Law and Land Law Africa's Population: In Search of a Demographic Dividend Hans Groth, John F. May, 2017-05-23 This book examines the promises as well as the challenges the demographic dividend brings to sub-Saharan Africa as fertility rates in the region fall and the labor force grows. It offers a detailed analysis of what conditions must be met in order for the region to take full economic advantage of ongoing population dynamics. As the book makes clear, the region will need to accelerate reforms to cope with its demographic transition, in particular the decline of fertility. The continent will need to foster human capital formation through renewed efforts in the areas of education, health, and employment. This will entail a true vision and determination on the part of African leaders and their development partners. The book will help readers to gain solid knowledge of the demographic trends and provide insights into socioeconomic policies that eventually might lead sub-Saharan Africa into a successful future.
