

Part 4: Multiple Choice. Circle the letter corresponding to the best answer.

1. A new headache remedy was given to a group of 20 subjects after test treatments. These tests were either taking the same remedy, 10 other subjects reported that their headaches had disappeared. From this information you conclude:
 - (a) that the remedy is effective for the treatment of headaches.
 - (b) nothing, because the subjects also tested each other.
 - (c) nothing, because there is no control group for comparison.
 - (d) that the cure is successful at least for some people.
 - (e) that the remedy is not effective for the treatment of headaches.
2. We wish to draw a sample of 300 blood specimens from a population of 500 individuals. Suppose the individuals are numbered 01, 02, ..., 500 and suppose that the numbers from 01 to 500 are written on 500 balls in an urn. A simple random sample of 300 balls is drawn. Which of the following is correct?
 - (a) individuals 01–100 are in the sample.
 - (b) individuals 01–300 are in the sample.
 - (c) individuals 01–500 are in the sample.
 - (d) individuals 01–500 are in the sample.
 - (e) individuals 01–300 are in the sample.
3. A simple random sample from a large number is selected to estimate the average male diameter of trees (measured 100 to 140 cm). There are two ways to go on to draw 500 balls with replacement from the urn. In the first method, 500 balls are drawn one at a time for 500 trials. In the second method, 50 balls are drawn, and measure the diameter of every 10th tree (skip 9 trees each time). This is an example of a:
 - (a) stratified sample.
 - (b) systematic sample.
 - (c) simple random sample.
 - (d) cluster sample.
 - (e) convenience sample.
4. A researcher for a consumer products company is doing a study using a new device to measure the energy absorbed by the human stomach. He believes, without any doubt, that some people absorb more energy than others. The researcher assigns 10 individuals to the group that will use the new device and 10 to the group that will use the company's current standard device. The best representation for this random assignment is that:
 - (a) randomization makes the random error when the data are collected and entered into the computer is zero.
 - (b) randomization minimizes the impact of any confounding variables.
 - (c) randomization is a good way to create groupings of 10 females that are identical or similar, or that respond in the same manner to the device.
 - (d) randomization means that the study is double-blind.
 - (e) randomization reduces the impact of outliers.
