Dickson, 2016-12-08 This volume the second of two in the series Creating the 21st Century Academic Library that deals with the topic of open access in academic libraries focuses on the implementation of open access in academic libraries Chapters on the legalities and practicalities of open access in academic libraries address the issues associated with copyright licensing and intellectual property and include support for courses that require open access distribution of student work The topic of library services in support of open access is explored including the library's role in providing open educational resources and as an ally and driver of their adoption for example by helping defray author fees that are required for open access articles A detailed look at open access in the context of undergraduate research is provided and considers how librarians can engage undergraduates in conversations about open access Chapters consider ways to engage undergraduate students in the use understanding evaluation and creation of open access resources Issues that are of concern to graduate students are also given some attention and central to these are the development of Electronic Thesis and Dissertation ETD programs A chapter examines the library's role in balancing greater access to graduate student work with the consequences of openness such as concerns about book contracts and sales plagiarism and changes in scholarly research and production. The book concludes with issues surrounding open data and library services in critical data librarianship including advocacy, preservation, and instruction. It is hoped that this volume and the series in general will be a valuable and exciting addition to the discussions and planning surrounding the future directions, services, and careers in the 21st-century academic library. Resources in Education, 1997

Supporting Transfer Student Success Peggy L. Nuhn, Karen F. Kaufmann, 2020-11-06 This research-based book with practical applications teaches academic librarians to support their transfer students effectively at both universities and community colleges even when transfer students' information literacy needs differ from those of other students. Colleges and universities across the United States serve a large and growing population of transfer students. Current estimates suggest that more than one third of college students transfer from one institution of higher education to another at least once. At some institutions, transfer students compose up to fifty to sixty percent of the new incoming class. Academic librarians' understanding of the demographics and potential needs of transfer students is essential to supporting their success and mitigating transfer shock. Just as public libraries often bridge gaps between individuals and services, academic libraries can proactively support the often unique needs of transfer students by spearheading textbook affordability initiatives, developing innovative programming, and making appropriate referrals to non-library student services. In this practical guide to supporting transfer students, authors Peggy L. Nuhn and Karen F. Kaufmann teach academic librarians how to optimize information literacy instruction, support research help, reduce stress, and connect the library to virtual students. They emphasize the importance of establishing partnerships with feeder institutions and other campus departments to best support transfer student success. Resources in Education, 1996
