Building Tate Modern

Rowan Moore, Raymond Ryan, 2000-05 Standing on the south bank of the Thames opposite the dome of St Paul's Cathedral Sir Giles Gilbert Scott's vast brick edifice with its tower of 325 feet dominates the scenery and ranks among the most imposing structures of central London Yet after its closure in 1981 the Bankside Power Station was rendered invisible to the public eye by its redundancy and the frequent threat of demolition The reopening of Bankside in May 2000 as London's first national gallery of modern and contemporary art restores the grandeur of Scott's design and regenerates a much neglected area of the city The conversion to art gallery by the Swiss architects Herzog and de Meuron is marked by its extreme simplicity at once enhancing the physical presence of the original architecture and completely transforming its derelict and impenetrable interior into an accessible light filled exhibition center The tremendous affinity of contemporary art with ex industrial settings has inspired a design that retains the monumental scale of the Turbine Hall and skillfully offers a range of spaces for widely differing types of art on the multiple floors of the Old Boiler House This publication follows the story of the Bankside project and presents a stunning photographic account of every stage of its transformation Including an interview with Jacques Herzog and Nicholas Serota director of the Tate it provides a detailed analysis of Herzog and de Meuron's design and redefines the Tate's role within contemporary culture

Pictures of Architecture - Architecture of Pictures Jeff Wall, Jacques Herzog, Philip Ursprung, 2004-05-04 Jacques Herzog and Jeff Wall are among art and architecture's most successful representatives and Herzog de Meuron's architecture in the art domain e.g. Tate Modern London has since the 70s attracted particular attention Wall for his part has repeatedly in his motifs sought dialogue with architecture His photography of Herzog de Meuron's Dominus Winery 1999 in California represents the point of departure for a discussion on the relationship between art and photography Questions arise as a result on topics such as photogenic architecture the construction of pictures and buildings and the time factor essays and excerpts by various authors that uniquely address how particular structural elements or systems relate in essential fashion to architectural design concepts The model studies physical models of the overall structural systems of several notable contemporary buildings from Europe North and South America Africa and Asia are illustrated with large photographs detail close ups and views of their external forms and internal spaces that establish the exceptional qualities of these projects in connecting structural form to architectural design objectives Mosaic layouts complete the chapters with a collection of photographs of yet more models whose particular details and unique features serve to extend the visual repertoire of the structural type being considered The combination juxtaposition and mutual positive reinforcement of these two collections one largely textual and the other image based provides the reader with unique and multifaceted insights into how structural forms and systems can be related to architectural design intentions Conveyed by a strong and deliberate graphical design format this assembly of materials gets to the very essence of structures within the context of architecture and will inspire students and practitioners alike to make strategic design decisions for their own projects 1981-2000, Herzog and de Meuron Fernando Márquez Cecilia,2000-01-01 The Architecture of Light Mary Ann Steane,2012-11-12

Reviewing the use of natural light by architects in the era of electricity this book aims to show that natural light not only remains a potential source of order in architecture but that natural lighting strategies impose a usefully creative discipline on design Considering an approach to environmental context that sees light as a critical aspect of place this book explores current attitudes to natural light by offering a series of in depth studies of recent projects and the particular lighting issues they have addressed It gives a more nuanced appraisal of these lighting strategies by setting them within their broader topographic climatic and cultural contexts □□□□□□□□□□□□□□□□,2002 Intelligent Skins Michael Wigginton,Jude Harris,2013-06-17 Looking to the future Intelligent Skins sets out the principles for the design of the intelligent building envelope It highlights an exciting new approach to the area where the fabric of the building responds to external changes and internal demands The prime objective is to control internal environments through a responsive building fabric rather than by energy consuming building services systems The authors examine the potential for integral intelligence within the fabric of the building and explore the evolution of information technology and smart materials which have allowed a whole new category of design principles to be created Work in Progress Jacques Herzog,2008 Enjoy an insiders access as one of the worlds most renowned architectural firms translates ideas into form and space Work in Progress Herzog de Meuron s Miami Art Museum offers an unparalleled glimpse into the ways site environment and local culture inform the firms evolving design for the new Miami Art Museum Sculpture and the Museum ChristopherR. Marshall,2017-07-05 Sculpture and the Museum is the first in depth examination of the varying roles and meanings assigned to sculpture in museums and galleries during the modern period from neo classical to contemporary art practice It considers a rich array of curatorial strategies and settings in order to examine the many reasons why sculpture has enjoyed a position of such considerable importance and complexity within the institutional framework of the museum and how changes to the museum have altered in turn the ways that we perceive the sculpture within it In particular the contributors consider the complex issue of how best to display sculpture across different periods and according to varying curatorial philosophies Sculptors discussed include Canova Rodin Henry Moore Flaxman and contemporary artists such as Rebecca Horn Rachel Whiteread Mark Dion and Olafur Eliasson with a variety of museums in America Canada and Europe presented as case studies Underlying all of these discussions is a concern to chart the critical importance of the acquisition placement and display of sculpture in museums and to explore the importance of sculptures as a forum for the expression of programmatic statements of power prestige and the museum's own sense of itself in relation to its audiences and its broader institutional aspirations New York Magazine, 1997-07-14

New York Magazine was born in 1968 after a run as an insert of the New York Herald Tribune and quickly made a place for itself as the trusted resource for readers across the country With award winning writing and photography covering everything from politics and food to theater and fashion the magazine's consistent mission has been to reflect back to its audience the energy and excitement of the city itself while celebrating New York as both a place and an idea Touching Architecture

Anthony Brand, 2022-12-30 This book is about perception emotion and affect in architecture how and why we feel the way that we do and the ways in which our surroundings and bodies contribute to this Our experience of architecture is an embodied one with all our senses acting in concert as we move through time and space The book picks up where much of the critique of architectural aestheticism at the end of the twentieth century left off illustrating the limitations and potential consequences of attending to architecture as the visually biased practice which has steadily become the status quo within both industry and education It draws upon interdisciplinary research to elucidate the reasons why this is counter productive to the creation of meaningful places and to articulate the embodied richness of our touching encounters A felt phenomenology is introduced as a more than visual alternative capable of sustaining our physical emotional and psychological well being By recognising the reciprocal and participatory relationship that exists between atmospheric affect and our phenomenological bodies we begin to appreciate the manifold ways in which we touch and are touched by our built environment As such Touching Architecture will appeal to those with an interest in architectural history and theory as well as those interested in the topic of atmospheres affect and embodied perception Swiss Made R. James Breiding, 2013-01-10

Why has Switzerland a tiny land locked country with few natural advantages become so successful for so long at so many things In banking pharmaceuticals machinery even textiles Swiss companies rank alongside the biggest and most powerful global competitors How did they get there How do they continue to refresh themselves Does the Swiss Sonderfall special case provide lessons others can learn and benefit from Can the Swiss continue to perform in a hyper competitive global economy Swiss Made offers answers to these and many other questions about the country as it describes the origins structures and characteristics of the most important Swiss companies The authors suggest success is due to a large degree to sound entrepreneurial thinking and an openness to new ideas And they venture a surprising forecast on the country's ability to keep pace in an age of globalisation

Translucent Building Skins Scott Murray, 2013-05-07 Exploring the design of innovative building enclosure systems or skins in contemporary architecture and their precedents in earlier twentieth century modern architecture this book examines the tectonics the history and the influence of translucency as a defining characteristic in architecture Highly illustrated throughout with drawings and full colour photographs the book shows that translucency has been and continues to be a fertile ground for architectural experimentation Each chapter presents a comparative analysis of two primary buildings a recent project paired with a historical precedent highlighting how architects in different eras have realized the distinctive effects of translucency The included buildings span a variety of program types ranging from a single family residence to a factory to a synagogue Whether it is Pierre Chareau's glass lens curtain wall at the Maison de Verre Frank Lloyd Wright's wall of stacked glass tubes at the Johnson Wax Research Tower or Peter Zumthor's use of acid etched glass in a double skin envelope at the Kunsthaus Bregenz the included projects each offer an exemplary case study of innovations in materiality and fabrication techniques Today among many contemporary architects there is an engagement with new technologies new material assemblies and new priorities such as sustainability and energy efficiency A resurgent interest in translucency as a defining quality in buildings has been an important part of this recent dialogue and this book makes essential reading for any architect looking to incorporate aspects of translucency into their buildings

Libraries, Literatures, and Archives Sas Mays, 2013-11-26 Not only does the library have a long and complex history and politics but it has an ambivalent presence in Western culture both a site of positive knowledge and a site of error confusion and loss Nevertheless in literary studies and in the humanities including book history the figure of the library remains in many senses under researched This collection brings together established and up and coming researchers from a number of practices literary and cultural studies gender studies book history philosophy visual culture and contemporary art with an effective historical sweep ranging from the time of Sumer to the present day In the context of the rise of archive studies this book attends specifically and meta critically to the figure of the library as a particular archival form considering the traits that constitute or fail to constitute the library as institution or idea and questions its relations to other accumulative modes such as the archive in its traditional sense the museum or the filmic or digital archive Across their diversity and in addition to their international standard of research and writing each chapter is unified by commitment to analyzing the complex cultural politics of the library form
