

The US high school dropout epidemic paints a grim picture of the country's educational future. Each year, many of the students who enroll in the elementary level fail to graduate from high school. What is even more worrying is the trend where many of the students abandon school with less than two years to graduation. Various studies have indicated approximately a third of all public high school students do not see out their high school years where about a half of this group is from the Hispanics, Native Americans and African American communities.

This recurrent problem has led to various initiatives to explore extend of the crisis in addition to finding the reasons and possible solutions to arrest the dropout rate. Timely solutions are necessary especially since there has not been a substantial improvement in the figures even after the education reforms of the past few decades. Consequently, this essay explores the extend of high school dropout rate while suggesting the possible reasons why many students do not stay in school until graduation in addition to providing possible solutions to end the cycle.

Statistics notes the current annual high school dropout figure to be 3,030,000 (Education Week, 2013). The high number of high school dropouts in US educational system has not gone unnoticed given the number of national policies that have been put in place over the years to reverse the cycle. The year 1990 recorded a change in the way the state and federal government handled the issue of high school dropouts through adoption of six national goals that were to be achieved by the year 2000. The second goal in the six national goals underlies the government's commitment towards improving the high school graduation rate up to 90 percent in addition to an undertaking which would see the prevailing gap in high school graduation rates among minority and non-minority students eliminated. The six national goals for the reduction of high school dropout rate has had a significant impact as seen from the decreasing levels of drop outs

High School Dropout Research Paper:

Graduation for All Camilla A. Lehr, Ann T. Clapper, Martha L. Thurlow, 2005-06-08 Effective dropout prevention strategies for educators This resource offers guidelines for implementing dropout prevention strategies in the classroom and throughout the school system The impact of increased graduation rates reaches farther than statistics more graduates mean more individuals who are better prepared to meet the challenges of life after school and better outcomes for youth schools and society in general With the goal of producing an educated citizenry the authors present tools and a plan for Increasing graduation rates Meeting the standards set by the No Child Left Behind Act Pinpointing the most critical years for establishing a solid educational foundation High School Dropout, Graduation, and Completion Rates National Academy of Education, National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Center for Education, Committee for Improved Measurement of High School Dropout and Completion Rates: Expert Guidance on Next Steps for Research and Policy Workshop, 2011-04-17 High school graduation and dropout rates have long been used as indicators of educational system productivity and effectiveness and of social and economic well being While determining these rates may seem like a straightforward task their calculation is in fact quite complicated How does one count a student who leaves a regular high school but later completes a GED How does one count a student who spends most of his/her high school years at one school and then transfers to another If the student graduates which school should receive credit If the student drops out which school should take responsibility High School Dropout Graduation and Completion Rates addresses these issues and to examine 1 the strengths limitations accuracy and utility of the available dropout and completion measures 2 the state of the art with respect to longitudinal data systems and 3 ways that dropout and completion rates can be used to improve policy and practice School Dropouts in the United States Aaron M.
