Emotions in Reading, Learning, and Communication Catherine Bohn-Gettler, Johanna Kaakinen, 2024-08-16. This book brings together experts engaging in empirical studies on how emotion influences learning and processing for varying text types in different contexts. In our current era, learners are confronted with many and varying sources of information such as news, media, books, websites, social media, scientific articles, communicative interactions, and more. In addition, individuals must learn from such sources, making it important to critically examine the factors underlying learning from text and discourse. Importantly, the valence, pleasantness, and activation intensity of learners' emotions can influence the quality of processing, which could help or hinder the learner's ability to understand and learn from text. The chapters included in this book work toward developing a more comprehensive understanding of the influence of emotions in supporting learning, comprehension, processing, and conceptual change to draw important connections to the broader fields of text and discourse, learning, and motivation. This is an important and illuminating read for students and scholars of psychology, education, and educational technology. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Discourse Processes.
