Reconciling Different Concepts Of Risk And Vulnerability:

Governing Failure Jacqueline Best, 2014-01-09 Jacqueline Best argues that the 1990s changes in IMF World Bank and donor policies towards what some have called the Post Washington Consensus were driven by an erosion of expert authority and an increasing preoccupation with policy failure. Failures such as the Asian financial crisis and the decades of despair in sub-Saharan Africa led these institutions to develop governance strategies designed to avoid failure, fostering country ownership, developing global standards, managing risk and vulnerability and measuring results. In contrast to the structural adjustment era when policymakers were confident in their solutions, this is an era of provisional governance in which key actors are aware of the possibility of failure even as they seek to inoculate themselves against it. Best considers the implications of this shift, asking if it is a positive change and whether it is sustainable. Reducing Global Poverty Caroline O.N. Moser, 2008-06-01 A daunting challenge to the international community is how to go about lifting the world's huge poor population out of poverty. Asset-based approaches to development are aimed specifically at designing and implementing public policies that will increase the capital assets of the poor, i.e. the physical, financial, human, social and natural resources that can be acquired, developed, improved and transferred across generations. In this pathbreaking book, Caroline Moser and a group of experts with on-the-ground experience provide a set of case studies of asset-building projects around the globe. The authors use a cutting-edge research framework that moves beyond quick-snapshot solutions to the problem of poverty. They highlight the ways in which poor households and communities can move out of poverty through longer-term accumulation of capital assets. Contributors include Michael Carter, University of Wisconsin; Monique Cohen, Microfinance Opportunities; Sarah Cook, Institute of Development Studies, Sussex; Hector Cordero Guzman, Baruch College, CUNY; Lilianne Fan, Oxfam UK; Pablo Farias, Ford Foundation, New York; Clare Ferguson, formerly DFID; Andy Felton, FDIC; Sarah Gammage, Rutgers University; Anirudh Krishna, Duke University; Amy Liu, Brookings Institution.

Discussion Paper ,2007 OECD Journal on Development ,2009 Vulnerability and Social Protection in Malawi ,2007 Handbook on Urban Social Policies Kazepov, Yuri, Barberis, Eduardo, Cucca, Roberta, Mocca, Elisabetta, 2022-07-22 The importance of subnational welfare measures and their complex embeddedness in wider multilevel governance systems has often been underplayed in both urban studies and social policy analysis This Handbook gives readers the analytical tools to understand urban social policies in context and bridges the gap in research

Assets, Livelihoods, and Social Policy Caroline O. N. Moser, Anis Ahmad Dani, 2008 Given the pervasiveness of the informal sector and the lack of adequate universal safety nets livelihoods of the poor depend heavily on their ability to access and accumulate assets obtain decent returns on those assets and use their asset base to manage risks The papers in this volume discuss the strategies adopted by people to accumulate assets through migration housing investments natural resources management and informal businesses and consider how an asset based social policy could enable those strategies or help them overcome the constraints of an unfavorable institutional environment

Family Farming and the Worlds to Come Jean-Michel Sourisseau, 2014-11-05 What is family farming How can it help meet the challenges confronting the world How can it contribute to a sustainable and more equitable development Not only is family farming the predominant form of agriculture around the world especially so in developing countries it is also the agriculture of the future By declaring 2014 the International Year of Family Farming the United Nations has placed this form of production at the center of debates on agricultural development These debates are often reduced to two opposing positions The first advocates the development of industrial or company agriculture supposedly efficient because it follows industrial processes for market oriented mass production The second promotes the preservation of family farming with its close links between family and farm The authors of this book wish to enrich the debates by helping overcome stereotypes which often manifest through the use of terms such as small scale farming subsistence farming peasant etc Research work has emphatically demonstrated the great adaptability of family farming systems and their ability to meet the major challenges of tomorrow but it has also not overlooked their limitations The authors explore the choices facing society and possible development trajectories at national and international levels and the contribution that agriculture will have to make They call for a recommitment of public policies in favor of family farming in developing countries and stress the importance of planning actions targeted at and tailored to the family character of agricultural models But above all they highlight the need to overcome strictly sectoral rationales by placing family farming at the core of a broader economic and social project This book is the result of a collaborative effort led by CIRAD and encapsulates three decades of research on family farming It will interest researchers teachers and students and all those involved in national and international efforts for the development of countries in the South

Environmental Change, Forced Displacement and International Law Isabel M. Borges, 2018-12-07 This book explores the increasing concern over the extent to which those suffering from forced cross border displacement as a result of environmental change are protected under international human rights law Formally they are not entitled to admission or stay in a third state country a situation that has been identified as an international legal protection gap The book seeks to provide answers to two basic questions whether and to what extent existing international law protects cross border environmental displacement and whether and how existing formalized regional complementary protection standards can interpretively solidify and conceptualize protection for cross border environmental displacement The discussion outlines that the protection of the human person is not only an ex post facto obligation of states but must be increasingly seen as an ex ante one The analysis further suggests that the European Union regionally orientated protection regime can help states to consolidate an evolving protection paradigm of proactive and reactive measures being erected at the international level It can also narrow the identified legal protection gaps In so doing it helps states to reconceptualise protection as a holistic and dynamic enterprise This book will be of great interest to academics in law political science and human rights policy makers and civil society organisations both at national and international level
