Crew Resource Management In Helicopter Air Ambulance:

Crew Resource Management in Helicopter Air Ambulance Operations Crystal Rowley, Michelle R. Bryant, 2017

INTRODUCTION Crew resource management CRM training has evolved from an aviation specific practice to a much broader scoped practice involving other industries with team oriented objectives Combined objective industries such as helicopter air ambulance HAA operations have the unique requirement to combine ground dispatch and air flight crew with traditional medical and aviation operations in ad hoc situations adding another dimension to the CRM implementation process Despite the requirements for such training in HAA operations evidence suggests that CRM training does not reach all team members equally Thus there are gaps in the current research both in theory and practice

METHODS Using a systematic computer query 224 citations and 58 representative articles published from 1972 to 2015 were included in this review study The results of the review are separated into five areas 1 the definition of CRM and a description of implementation strategies across different industry types 2 a description of CRM training approaches 3 an overview of the role CRM has played in aviation and healthcare 4 the role of dispatch and communication centers regarding CRM in HAA operations and 5 the gaps that exist in training and implementation strategies in CRM as they relate to HAA operations The gaps were prioritized based on the estimated risk to HAA operations from lowest to highest

RESULTS The first priority was to develop a research plan to address pilots risk based decision making processes The second and third priorities were to develop a research plan to identify gaps in medical personnel s knowledge regarding HAA operations including their responsibilities in flight and to determine whether these gaps play a role in the successful implementation of CRM principles The fourth and fifth priorities were to develop a research plan to identify gaps in supporting personnel s i e dispatch communication centers etc knowledge regarding HAA operations and to determine whether these gaps play a role in the successful implementation of CRM principles

DISCUSSION Relevant CRM research from industries such as medical units military units and ground operations will be discussed Cognitive and social skills associated with CRM as well as behavioral markers e g communication teamwork and decision making will also be shared and discussed

Abstract Antenna Up! Randy Mains, 2018-07-09 Why is this book important for helicopter pilots The short answer is to bring you and those who trust their lives to you home safely at the end of each day Why is it significant that you hold this book in your hands Because as an aviation professional the fact you are interested shows you re a pro who cares about flight safety and want to learn more Why is this book so important to you personally Because the latest study by the U S Joint Helicopter Safety Analysis Team JHSAT found that the majority of helicopter accidents 84% had a Standard Problem Statement of Pilot Judgment and Actions concluding There is a greater need for Aeronautical Decision Making ADM training to prevent further human error accidents Whether you fly your helicopter single pilot or multi crew the information in this book will allow you to avoid trap or mitigate an accident from happening thus avoid becoming one of the 84% in the accident statistics Safe Flying Crew Resource Management Paul

LeSage, Jeff Dyar, Bruce Evans, 2009-11-23 All fire departments are designed to achieve objectives like minimizing the loss of life and property but few departments that fail to emphasize crew resource management CRM principles on an ongoing basis succeed in getting the most out of its various teams to best achieve these goals Crew Resource Management Principles and Practice will teach fire department leaders the critical CRM skills needed to get the most out of every individual department member and to create an entire organization dedicated to the philosophy that the whole is greater than the sum of its parts Crew Resource Management Principles and Practice will help fire department leaders to eliminate communication barriers within various teams improve the lines of communication between fire fighters and their superiors maximize synergies between teams through cross training while also improving individual performance and teach situational awareness and decision making skills to help department members succeed in even the most challenging conditions Aviation Resource Management Brent.
