Preen, 1981 This investigation was into the computerized design and analysis of portal frame type structures which may include members of varying section by both elastic and plastic methods of analysis The objectives were to produce suitable design guide lines for the sizing of the frame members to produce an interactive plastic analysis program for use on micro computers and to expand the capability of the existing elasto plastic analysis program at the University of Bradford to cope with haunched members and to incorporate any applicable time and space saving devices The design guide lines were to be an extension of D I Blockley s paper The Design of Single Storey Pitched Roof Portal Frames published in 1970 Repeated analysis and geometrically similar frames with varying sections were performed and the results combined with the recommendations from Blockley s paper to produce design guides for the sizing and position of the individual members of the frame To produce a suitable plastic analysis program for use on a micro computer computer the Reactant Bending Moment or Graphical method analysis was chosen The advantages of this method are that it is commonly used in the design office it allows checking at intermediate stages in the analysis and the free bending moment distribution aids the selection of appropriate hinge positions The existing program at the University of Bradford was to be extended by introduction of routines which would allow haunched members and multiply loading to any member this would reduce computer storage and solution time but a special solution routine was required to determine the formation position of a hinge along a member The three objectives were completed and where possible compared with other

proven methods of analysis
