The Premiership 2008-2009 , Numbers and Narratives Wray Vamplew, 2018-11-08 This volume argues for a more quantitative economic and theoretical approach to sports history The author notes that sport can have peculiar economics as in no other industry do rival businesses have to cooperate to produce a sellable output He also demonstrates via a case study of early gate money football in Scotland that sports producers were not always seeking profits and often put winning games and trophies ahead of making money Another analysis examines how industrialisation affected sport how sport became an industry in its own right and how the workplace became a major provider of sports facilities A look at third sector economics highlights how the popularity of football provided an ideal vehicle for charity fundraising The book observes that most sports participants are amateurs but at the elite level the paid player has a key role and this is assessed through case studies of the jockey and the golf professional Finally the author discusses and evaluates various theories relating to the historical development of the sports club This book was originally published as a special issue of Sport in Society Cultures Commerce Media Politics

Tariff League Bulletin , 1894 Multidirectional Speed in Sport Paul Jones, Thomas Dos'Santos, 2023-06-30 During field and court based sports players are continually required to perceive their environment within a match and select and perform the most appropriate action to achieve their immediate goal within that match instance This ability is commonly known as agility considered a vital quality in such sports and may incorporate a variety of locomotion and instantaneous actions Multidirectional speed is a global term to describe the competency and capacity to perform such actions accelerate decelerate change direction and ultimately maintain speed in multiple directions and movements within the context of sports specific scenarios encompassing agility speed and many other related qualities Multidirectional speed in sport depends on a multitude of factors including perceptual cognitive abilities physical qualities and the technical ability to perform the previously mentioned actions Multidirectional Speed in Sport Research to Application reviews the science of multidirectional speed and translates this information into real world application in order to provide a resource for practitioners to develop multidirectional speed with athletes bringing together knowledge from a wealth of world leading researchers and applied practitioners in the area of speed and agility to provide a complete resource to assist practitioners in designing effective multidirectional speed development programmes This text is critical reading for undergraduate and graduate sports science students all individuals involved in training athletes e.g. coaches physiotherapists athletic trainers and researchers in the field of sports science and sports medicine The Builder, 1905 Graphic Sports Felix Abayateye, 2010-04-06 The International Standard, 1884 Official Gazette of the United States Patent and Trademark Office, 2005 The Standard American Encyclopedia of Arts, Sciences, History, Biography, Geography, Statistics, and General Knowledge John Clark Ridpath, 1897 Farmer's Weekly, 1927 Boosted Statistical Relational Learners Sriraam Natarajan, Kristian Kersting, Tushar Khot, Jude Shavlik, 2015-03-03 This SpringerBrief addresses the challenges of analyzing multi relational and noisy data by proposing several Statistical Relational Learning (SRL) methods. These methods combine the expressiveness of first order logic and the ability of probability theory to handle uncertainty. It provides an overview of the methods and the key assumptions that allow for adaptation to different models and real world applications. The models are highly attractive due to their compactness and comprehensibility but learning their structure is computationally intensive. To combat this problem the authors review the use of functional gradients for boosting the structure and the parameters of statistical relational models. The algorithms have been applied successfully in several SRL settings and have been adapted to several real problems from Information extraction in text to medical problems. Including both context and well tested applications. Boosting Statistical Relational Learning from Benchmarks to Data Driven Medicine is designed for researchers and professionals in machine learning and data mining. Computer engineers or students interested in statistics, data management or health informatics will also find this brief a valuable resource. Sport and Physical Education in China Robin Jones, James (Jim) Riordan, 2002-09-11. Written by a number of expert scholars from around the world including China itself with the aim of extending knowledge and taking the cross cultural study of PE and sport beyond the descriptive level, this book provides unique and up to date material. Subjects covered include ancient and modern history, structure, administration and finance, PE in schools and colleges, elite sport, sport science and medicine, gender issues. Anyone wishing to gain an insight into the PE and sporting experience of Chinese citizens both in historical and contemporary society will find this book essential reading. It is an indispensable resource for students taking comparative sport studies courses, sports historians and academics with a general interest in the cross cultural field.
