Revised Edition

Alex Stefani ME (Marine Engineer)

A photograph of a ship's bridge control room. In the foreground, a large, light blue console is equipped with a large touchscreen display showing a blue interface with various data points and charts. Below the screen are several control panels, including a numeric keypad and various buttons. A black microphone is positioned in front of the console. To the left, a black office chair is partially visible. In the background, white storage cabinets with drawers and doors are visible, some with small red and green indicator lights. The overall scene is brightly lit, suggesting a modern and functional maritime control environment.
