Status and Prospects of Feed Crops in Southeast Asia Erna Maria Lokollo,2006 Halal Food Certification and Business

Halal food certification plays a pivotal role in both consumers food purchase and consumption and food manufacturers business conducts. The growing trends of Halal food have encouraged firms to implement Halal food certification. Numerous studies have recognized the importance of Halal food certification to consumers rather than Halal food manufacturers. However, Halal food certificate motivations, implementation, and the impact on firm performance, particularly the Malaysia Standard on Halal Food MS1500:2009, are hardly examined. Therefore, this study aims to investigate the motivations behind Halal food certification and its impact on food manufacturers' operational, marketing, and financial performances. Resource-based view and institutional theory underpin the proposed conceptual framework of the study. Five hypotheses were proposed to determine the relationships between certification motivations and firm performances. A quantitative methodology was adopted, and data were collected using self-administered questionnaires. A total of 210 Halal-certified food manufacturing companies in Peninsular Malaysia participated in the survey. A partial least square structural equation modeling was conducted for data analysis. A key finding is that both the external and internal motivations positively influence Halal food certificate implementation. Moreover, it was also found that implementing Halal food certification has a positive relationship with firm performance. Further findings indicated that government intervention, consumer demand, industry competition, employee commitment, operation improvement, and marketing return are significant motivators for Halal food certificate implementation. Results also revealed that Halal food certification has a significant impact on the respondents' operation, marketing, and financial performances. Theoretically, this study offers insights into the significance of consumer pressure as a normative isomorphism in the institutional theory. Additionally, this study reinforces the understanding of Halal food certification as a significant and relevant strategic tool to remain competitive within the profoundly homogenous and saturated food industry. Practically, the information gained from this research could potentially be beneficial to encourage non-certified firms to become Halal-certified. Future research is encouraged to study the motives and impact of Halal food certification from various countries as well as apply this research across other industries like pharmaceutical, tourism, or cosmetic.

The Process of Halal Food Certification in Malaysia Nurul Aznira binti Yahya, 2014

This research attempts to study and understand the issues on Malaysian halal food certification from both Shariah and technical perspectives. It involves the discussion on the internal and external factors that influence the implementation of Malaysian halal food certification. In fact, the process of halal certification and the misuse of the halal logo and certificate have significant relationships with the authenticity of the halal food itself. Overall, the process of Malaysian halal certification complies with the Shariah; however, some weaknesses should be overcome. The finding shows that the application of Malaysian halal certification must be seriously implemented by all parties, whether the authorities, consumers, or manufacturers. In other words it is high time to enforce all certification usage on those who want to be involved in food business in order to give full confidence to consumer and preserve Maq id Shar ah This is because the food industry is often unaware of the requirements of the Muslim consumers Moreover it is relevant as an alternative to solve recent issues on food products As a result the knowledge of Fiqh consumerism is needed to practice as a new mechanism to cope with all issues Then Muslim researchers should be urged to explore this area of study in order to protect Muslim consumers when choosing food for their consumption

Halal industry players and Halal scholars Key Issues in Implementing Halal Certification Process in Selected Halal Chicken Slaughterhouses in Thailand Adib Sa-idi, 2012

The Halal certification process is one of the significant factors in the developing Halal food industry. The Halal certification process verifies Halal food production and also establishes trust with consumers. This research focuses on the implementation of the Halal certification process for selected Halal chicken slaughterhouses in Thailand. There are two main objectives of the research. The first objective is to study the process of Halal certification in chicken slaughterhouses in Thailand. The second objective is to study the problems in implementing the Halal certification process in selected Halal chicken slaughterhouses in Thailand. This research used a qualitative method, the data being divided into two types: primary and secondary. Primary data were collected through in-depth interviews and direct observation. Secondary data were collected from textbook documents and published reports. The research found that the Halal certification process in chicken slaughterhouses in Thailand consists of five steps: 1 preparation, 2 application submission and consideration, 3 appointment of a Halal slaughtering supervisor to the chicken slaughterhouse to undertake the duties, 4 result analysis and approval of Halal certification, and 5 follow up and evaluation. For the implementation of the Halal certification process in selected Halal chicken slaughterhouses, the research found that the problems in implementing the process are divided into six categories: 1 problems caused by the Halal slaughtering supervisors, 2 problems caused by the employees in the factory, 3 problems in the slaughterhouses, 4 problem related to the checklist documents, 5 problem of incomplete auditing, and 6 problem of financial support. Based on the findings of this study, the suggestions are also divided into six categories: 1 improving the effectiveness of the Halal slaughtering supervisors, 2 improving the effectiveness of the employees in the chicken slaughterhouses, 3 improving the communication between the Halal slaughtering supervisors and the executive managers, 4 improving the Halal audit checklist and other documents, especially reminder posters or notice boards at every critical point, 5 providing the Halal slaughtering supervisor with assistants or supporters, and 6 obtaining more financial support for the Halal certification process from the government sector. The suggestions form the basis of developing the Halal certification process, especially for chicken slaughterhouses in Thailand.
