Hollywood Planet Global Media And The Competitive Advantage Of Narrative Transparency Routledge Communication Series:

Hollywood Planet Scott Robert Olson, 1999-06-01 The popularity of American television programs and feature films in the international marketplace is widely recognized but scarcely understood Existing studies have not sufficiently explained the global power of the American media nor its actual effects In this volume Scott Robert Olson tackles the issue head on establishing his thesis that the United States competitive advantage in the creation and global distribution of popular taste is due to a unique mix of cultural conditions that are conducive to the creation of transparent texts narratives whose inherent polysemy encourage diverse populations to read them as though they are indigenous Olson posits that these narratives have meaning to so many different cultures because they allow viewers in those cultures to project their own values archetypes and tropes into the movie or television program in a way that texts imported from other cultures do not thus enabling the import to function as though it were an indigenous product As an innovative volume combining postcolonial and postmodern theory with global management strategic theory Hollywood Planet is one of the first studies that attempts to account theoretically for numerous recent ethnographic studies that suggest different interpretations of television programs and film by a variety of international audiences Relevant to studies in media theory and other areas of the communication discipline as well as anthropology sociology and related fields Hollywood Planet contains a powerful and original argument to explain the dominance of American media in the global entertainment market

Researching Creativity in Media Industries Mads Møller T. Andersen, 2024-03-20 In this book Mads Møller T Andersen examines the methodological challenges that arise when studying creativity and creative processes in media industries arguing that the field of media studies still has much to learn about how these industries facilitate their own creative processes Andersen introduces and utilizes a theoretical framework of five traditions in creativity to guide readers through five different methods of approaching and understanding the concept of creativity exploring whether media scholars should abandon current romantic understandings of creativity in favor of more progressive and nuanced definitions Ultimately Andersen considers and offers examples of how as a discipline we can design studies of creative processes that also address what we still don't know about creativity in these contexts Scholars interested in media studies cultural studies and research methods will find this book particularly useful

Between the Forest and the Road Stephan Ehrig, Benjamin Schaper, Elizabeth Ward, 2023-08-11 Audiences for contemporary German film and television are becoming increasingly transnational and depictions of German cultural history are moving beyond the typical post war focus on Germany's problematic past Entertaining German Culture explores this radical shift building on recent research into transnational culture to argue that a new process of internal and external cultural reabsorption is taking place through areas of mutually assimilating cultural exchange such as streaming services an increasingly international film market and the import and export of Anglo American media formats

Entertaining German Culture Stephan Ehrig, Benjamin

Schaper,Elizabeth Ward,2023-08-11 Audiences for contemporary German film and television are becoming increasingly transnational and depictions of German cultural history are moving beyond the typical post war focus on Germany's problematic past Entertaining German Culture explores this radical shift building on recent research into transnational culture to argue that a new process of internal and external cultural reabsorption is taking place through areas of mutually assimilating cultural exchange such as streaming services an increasingly international film market and the import and export of Anglo American media formats The Digital Glocalization of Entertainment Paolo Sigismondi,2011-08-31 In this volume Paolo Sigismondi explores the dynamics of global media and entertainment specifically analyzing the implications of the global rise of non scripted entertainment as reality TV programs and the impact and consequences of the Information and Communication Technology ICT revolution on the content delivery platforms and overall business models of the media and entertainment landscape This work aims at bridging the gap between media theories and industry practices in a rapidly evolving global mediascape building on scholarship in the field and enriched by case studies and insights from business practice This work demonstrates that the paradigms of the landscape are shifting introducing the digital glocalization of entertainment through which successful media crossing national and cultural borders incorporate both global and local features Key questions raised include Is the ICT revolution an example of disruptive technology for the global media and entertainment industry Is the existing status quo challenged and in particular Hollywood's global leadership What are the global entities emerging as Hollywood's main competitors in this technologically evolving landscape Sigismondi argues that as new players are entering the field new threats to Hollywood's dominance are emerging The global leaders in non scripted entertainment for example are European based global entities operating outside the Hollywood system Meanwhile the ICT revolution is modifying the contours and boundaries of the global mediascape Sigismondi's approach provides unique insight into how the forces of technology and globalization are transforming television cinema and online entertainment

International Media Studies Divya McMillin,2007-01-16 International Media Studies is a bold introduction to the field that focuses on a de centering of media epistemology to represent a more thorough world view A comprehensive textbook exploring the current state of media studies as it is being practised across the world Takes discussions about media studies beyond other textbooks by situating the subject firmly in an international context appropriate to the globalized 21st century Surveys our reception of a wide variety of media content and formats including television magazines fiction newspapers and popular music Considers both theoretical and much needed ethnographic perspectives on media studies Showcases global and local media patterns in a variety of countries around the world including examples from Asia Africa and Latin America
