Gudai hanyu jiaocheng Chengyu Hong, 1991 Biaozhun hanyu jiaocheng , 2007 Advanced chinese volume 3 Jiang Dewu, Dong Shuren, 1990 Explorations into Chinese as a Second Language Istvan Kecskes, 2017-06-23 This volume explores how linguistic research can support the teaching and learning of Chinese as a second language It responds to a rapidly growing interest in the Chinese language all over the world and answers the need for a strong research background for the discipline Without that Chinese language learning remains only a unique experience and or a useful education challenge The first section explores crucial issues about the structure and use of Chinese as a Second Language such as word order noun noun compounds meaning making in writing pronunciation and stress and tone The second section explores the learning of Chinese by seeking answer to questions about difficulties expectations beliefs use of corpus and learning how to express necessity The authors coming from eight different countries demonstrate how existing knowledge has been generated bring together different lines of research point out tendencies in the field demonstrate and explain what tools and methods researchers can use to address major issues in the field and give direction to what future research should focus on

Foreign Language Teaching in Asia and Beyond Wai Meng Chan, Kwee Nyet Chin, Titima Suthiwan, 2011-10-27 This book comprising two parts is concerned with both the science and the art of foreign language teaching with a particular but not exclusive focus on Asia Under the theme of Theoretical foundation and research Part 1 of this book informs the readers about recent efforts in theoretical and empirical research which have had an impact on foreign language teaching or promise to yield results that will shape its future These studies not just from the domain of foreign language teaching but also its primary feeder disciplines of linguistics and second language acquisition offer the necessary theoretical and conceptual foundation for both current and future research and practice As its theme Classroom practice and evaluation studies suggests Part 2 focuses on new and innovative developments in curricular and classroom practice all built upon insights from research in the above mentioned disciplines and poised to become standard practices These projects include qualitative and quantitative evaluation studies which have yielded insightful data for the refinement and continued development of the projects and their underlying theoretical concepts Xiandai-hanyu-jiaocheng , Chinese as a Second Language Research from Different Angles , 2024-04-02 A crucial question for Chinese as a Second Language research is how to help elevate Chinese language teaching methodology to the level of other world language methodologies such as English Spanish and German This work goes in two directions One explores how to apply research results achieved in Chinese linguistics to Chinese language teaching and the other is engaged in creating a strong applied linguistics research field that supports Chinese language teaching CASLAR scholars are mainly involved in the latter one This book is a representative sample of their research endeavors Hanyu jiaocheng Jizhou Yang,2006 Second Language Acquisition of Mandarin Chinese Tones Hang Zhang,2018-07-03 Tones are the most challenging aspect of learning Chinese pronunciation for adult learners and traditional research mostly attributes tonal errors to interference from learners native languages In Second Language Acquisition of Mandarin Chinese Tones Hang Zhang offers a series of cross linguistic studies to argue that there are factors influencing tone acquisition that extend beyond the transfer of structures from learners first languages and beyond characteristics extracted from Chinese These factors include universal phonetic and phonological constraints as well as pedagogical issues By examining non native Chinese tone productions made by speakers of non tonal languages English Japanese and Korean this book brings together theory and practice and uses the theoretical insights to provide concrete suggestions for teachers and learners of Chinese Hanyu jiaocheng ,2008 Hanyu Xiezu Jiaocheng. (developing Chinese Writing Skills). Qing-Song LUO,1998 The Particle Zhe in Northwestern Chinese: A New Type of Contact-Induced Grammatical Change Xiaolei Fan,2025-06-29 This book presents an analysis of a particular grammatical phenomenon in Northwestern Chinese a k a Northwestern Chinese dialects uncovering a new pattern of contact induced changes which can be termed compromise innovation In the vast majority of Northwestern Chinese dialects the imperfective marker Zhe which behaves like a verb suffix in most Chinese dialects exhibits a number of peculiar characteristics The most prominent one is that it occurs in an unusual syntactic position where no verb suffix is expected to occur i e it is placed after the object V O Zhe rather than immediately following the verb V Zhe O Given that the grammaticalization of Zhe in Classical Chinese from a verb to an imperfective marker took place while Zhe was being used in the V Zhe O structure the V O Zhe construction in Northwestern Chinese is likely the result of a more recent change Furthermore in a group of Northwestern Chinese dialects there are various grammatical types of VP1 Zhe VP2 constructions in which Zhe occurs at the end of VP1 to mark the syntactic dependency between VP1 and VP2 In this usage Zhe is no longer an imperfective marker but rather similar to a converb marker This phenomenon challenges the conventional view that Chinese is a typical verb serializing language The book argues that the grammatical peculiarity of Zhe in Northwestern Chinese is a result of syntactic change induced by the contact with the non Han languages i e non Chinese spoken in Northwest China including Mongolic Turkic and Tibetan languages The V O Zhe configuration as the most distinctive phenomenon in this change reflects a compromise between the two types of languages in contact in such a configuration the canonical VO order of Chinese is maintained and meanwhile by moving the verb suffix to the clause final position it also complies with the verb final trait of the non Han languages In addition there are many differences between Zhe in Northwestern Chinese dialects and the corresponding grammatical forms in non Han languages in Northwest China This indicates that the innovative evolution of Zhe in Northwestern Chinese faces certain constraints and it is found that these constraints essentially stem from the inherent grammatical properties of the imperfective Zhe and various predicative structures in Chinese The usages of Zhe discussed in this book vividly demonstrate the fact that the contact induced change is a consequence of processes by which the external soil of another language i e source language and the internal genes of the native language i e recipient language compete against one another This study may present an interesting case illuminating the very nature of language as a self organizing and adaptive system and refresh the linguistic typology community s perspective on grammatical changes induced by language contact

Flexibility in the Parts-of-Speech System of Classical Chinese Linlin Sun, 2020-02-10 Languages across the world differ from each other in a number of respects and one such difference is in terms of how their lexicons are categorized Compared to most European languages with distinct functionally dedicated word classes in the traditional sense quite a few languages are observed to possess lexical items that can fulfill the functions typically associated with more than one traditional word class such as noun and verb According to Rijkhoff and van Lier 2013 these lexemes exhibit what is called flexibility Classical Chinese is observed to feature word class flexibility in the sense that there are lexemes that can be used to serve the functions of two or more traditional word classes without the functional change being marked by any derivational means For instance a lexical item like x n can either function as a verb meaning to be trustworthy intr or to believe to trust tr or serve as a noun meaning trust oath of alliance Similarly a human denoting lexeme such as y u FRIEND cannot only mean a friend but also to be a friend to behave friendly intr to make friends with tr or to consider as a friend tr an instrument word like bi n WHIP cannot only mean a whip but also to whip This situation is often thought to be related to the fact that Classical Chinese does not have any kind of productive morphology in the traditional sense e g Z drapa 2011 This is reflected in the lack of markedness distinctions across Croft s 2000 2001 conceptual space for parts of speech This study ascribes flexibility of parts of speech in Classical Chinese to precategoriality in line with Bisang 2008 a b

Precategoriality can roughly be defined as the absence of the noun verb distinction in the lexicon instead the linking of individual words to the syntactic position of N or V as well as their text frequency in these positions are subject to pragmatics Precategorial lexical items are those that are not preclassified into parts of speech in the lexicon rather their word class specification is ultimately determined at the syntactic level according to their position function in a given word class indicating construction From a diachronic viewpoint this study assumes that precategoriality and categoriality of individual lexical items are not static but that they are potentialities and tendencies that may change over time Specifically full precategoriality and full categoriality are assumed to constitute a continuum in the lexicon of Chinese throughout its history In any given historical period lexical items of the language are distributed between the two extremes on the continuum according to the intensity of the association between their lexical meaning and the syntactic position function of e g N or V Generally along the continuum at a given historical stage lexemes with a strong association between meaning and function i e lexemes that are normally associated only with one word class specification for a particular syntactic role tend to be located close to the extreme of full categoriality In contrast lexemes that are not necessarily related to one specific association between meaning and function but can potentially occur in a variety of such associations are assumed to be placed closer to full precategoriality instead. Roughly speaking the group of lexemes that is located towards full precategoriality are flexible lexemes though with varying degrees of flexibility whose semantics licenses a syntactic variety and can thus be linked to more than one word class specification through syntactic specification a syntactically specified process of category assignment. Based on these considerations this study aims to present the results of a corpus based investigation into flexibility of parts of speech in Classical Chinese. The research focuses on two types of syntactic specifications of flexible lexemes namely those using action denoting lexemes in nominal function the V N type and those using object denoting lexemes in verbal function the N V type. The two types of syntactic specifications are investigated for this study in the five Classical Chinese texts Zuozhuan, Mengzi, Guoyu, Mozi and Zhanguoce. Based on empirical facts flexibility of parts of speech in Classical Chinese is addressed at three descriptive levels in this study. First at the level of syntax the discussion focuses on the most important syntactic configurations for the use of flexible lexemes and their relations to the basic word order of this language with flexibility being observed in two positions of an argument structure construction the V position and the syntactic position of an argument. The findings of this study demonstrate that as far as the argument structure constructions formed with flexible lexemes are concerned VO word order is much more frequent than OV. This strong preference for VO is in connection with lexical flexibility explained as follows. With the loss of derivational morphology in early stages of Old Chinese e.g. Sagart 1999 word order became the most important indicator of word class and strongly supported the omission of strict verb noun distinctions co existence of precategoriality and categoriality in the lexicon of this language. Second at the level of cognitive semantics e.g. Lakoff 1987, Kvecses and Radden 1998, Schönefeld 2005 the discussion concentrates on the metonymic relationships that constitute the cognitive semantic foundation of the use of flexible lexemes in Classical Chinese. In a metonymic mapping of either the V N or the N V type the original semantics of a lexical item which may typically be associated with a certain syntactic role of N or V is used as a reference point to provide mental access to the newly derived meaning of the item in another syntactic function. Given the typologically salient characteristics of Classical Chinese discussed in this book the argument is that the flexible use of an existing word form as a metonymically related but syntactically distinct item is one of the most economic ways in this language to name a new concept or a newly construed situation in discourse. Third at the level of argument structure constructions Bisang 2008a, b the discussion focuses on how the different metonymic relationships mentioned interact with a given argument structure construction which carries its own meaning within itself and how these are further concretized into rule based or metaphorically motivated pragmatic implicatures. A closer examination of an argument structure construction with an object word in the V position reveals that there are two underlying frameworks for deriving the concrete meaning of the construction. In the rule based framework the verbal function of a given object word can basically be derived through grammatical analysis of the whole construction. In the metaphorical framework the composed semantics of the construction actively interacts with the outside world in our conceptual system where metaphor Lakoff 1987 1993 K vecses 2010 serves as an essential cognitive principle in establishing and re interpreting relations in the construction The two mechanisms rule based and metaphorical complement each other and work together to account for flexibility in Classical Chinese This study argues that flexibility of parts of speech in Classical Chinese can only be fully understood by integrating a wide range of aspects both linguistic and non linguistic The components that are needed to account for it include constructions form meaning pairings semantics Croft s conceptual space pragmatic implicatures metonymies metaphors as well as world knowledge as reflected within a culture In my view it is reasonable to argue that these components need not be specific to the language investigated here they are applicable to any language that shows flexibility in its parts of speech system A Modern Chinese Course ,1985
