Results concerning cultural differences in management and organizational skills point to some interesting findings. First, it was noted that individuals from more Latin American countries showed more positive attitudes toward the organization, and consequently showed more positive attitudes toward their immediate supervisors.

Employment in health is projected to grow more than additional half percent each year, according to the projections in Healthcare in America.¹ The Bureau of Labor Statistics' projections reflect long-term economic conditions and do not reflect an assumption of continued growth.

Various Management Functions: Planning, Staffing, Directing, and Controlling. These functions are essential for the success of an organization. Planning involves setting goals and determining the best way to achieve them. Staffing involves recruiting and selecting the right people for the job. Directing involves motivating and guiding employees to achieve the organization's goals. Controlling involves monitoring performance and making adjustments as needed.
