

WHAT'S ISLAMIC MARKETING?

With a global population of 1.7 billion Muslims, the Muslim consumer market is valued at $2.6 trillion annually. The halal food market alone is worth $661 billion a year. With this in mind, many companies are interested in expanding their product market to include more Muslims.

But what is Islamic marketing? We define it as creating connections with Muslim audiences in an appropriate and respectful way, after establishing a strong understanding of their values. This allows organizations to build their brand in an inclusive way. If you're selling products to the global market at large, remember that Muslims are as diverse as any other group, and may have different languages, cultures, lifestyles, and ways of practicing their religion in different countries. For this reason, there may be difficulties in reusing the same marketing communications targeting Muslim consumers across different markets.

1 Islamic Marketing An Introduction And Overview:

Handbook of Islamic Marketing Özlem Sandıkçı, Gillian Rice, 2011-01-01 This is an especially timely publication given the current metamorphosis of politics in the Middle East and North Africa. Özlem Sandıkçı and Gillian Rice are to be congratulated for having sensed the need for a Handbook that will alert marketers to the vast market opportunities offered by Muslim consumers. It is essential to become attuned to the values and principles of Islamic cultures that will drive consumption product and service choices, brand preference and brand loyalty in coming years. The scholars who have contributed to this Handbook come from many different backgrounds to offer a kaleidoscope of research and recommendations on how best to serve this previously overlooked segment of consumers who make up a quarter of world markets. Lyn S. Amine, Saint Louis University, US. This ambitious and timely collection will be enormously valuable to readers in the practice and study of the growing field of Muslim marketing and branding. Essays range expertly across key sectors, notably finance, food and fashion, and territories of Muslim majority and minority population. Contributors elaborate the diversity of Muslim experiences, beliefs and practices that must be taken into account by marketing professionals seeking to exploit this newly recognized market. Academic authors provide helpful postscripts for marketers making clear the links between their nuanced, historicized understanding of contemporary transnational, global and local forms of Muslim identity and practice. This book provides an essential guide to those who study and those who participate in Muslim branding and marketing. Reina Lewis, London College of Fashion, UK. The Handbook of Islamic Marketing provides state-of-the-art scholarship on the intersection of Islam, consumption and marketing and lays out an agenda for future research. The topics covered by eminent contributors from around the world range from fashion and food consumption practices of Muslims to retailing, digital marketing, advertising, corporate social responsibility and nation branding in the context of Muslim marketplaces. The essays offer new insights into the relationship between morality, consumption and marketing practices and discuss the implications of politics and globalization for Islamic markets. This comprehensive Handbook provides an essential introduction to the newly emerging field of Islamic marketing. It is invaluable for researchers and students in international marketing who are interested in the intersection of Islam and marketing as well as those from anthropology and sociology studying Muslim consumers and businesses. The book also supplies vital knowledge for Muslim and non-Muslim business leaders generating commerce in Islamic communities.

Islam, Marketing and Consumption Aliakbar Jafari, Özlem Sandıkçı, 2016-01-13 In recent years a critically oriented sub-stream of research on Muslim consumers and businesses has begun to emerge. This scholarship, located both within and outside the marketing field, adopts a socio-culturally situated approach to Islam and investigates the complex and multifaceted intersections between Islam and markets. This book seeks to reflect various unheard and emerging critical voices from within the Muslim world and provide a series of critical insights on how, if and why Islam matters to marketing theory and practice. It questions the existing assumptions and polarising discussions which underpin the portrayal of Islam as the other of Modernity while acknowledging that Muslims themselves are partially responsible for creating stereotyped representations of Islam and the Muslim This wide ranging and insightful collection will advance emerging critical perspectives and provide new insights that will influence the generation and application of knowledge in the context of Muslim societies It will open up fresh conversations for scholars in marketing as well as the broader humanities and social sciences

Due to the acceleration of globalization and enormous growth of Muslim population interest in Islamic marketing increased significantly in the past years The study of this dissertation aims to investigate to what extent Islam as a religion affects marketing and its components It was hypothesized that Islam affects marketing in Islamic markets significantly depending on the country and on the specific industry The author intends to fill in a research gap in this area by narrowing its focus on the promotional strategy of products and services in Islamic markets The conclusion of the study is based on evaluation of primary and secondary research data The outcome of the study showed that Islam indeed has meaningful impact on the business issues generally particularly on the marketing Marketers and companies should bear in mind the existing distinction between certain industries and countries as Islam does not affect all of them equally American Book Publishing Record ,2007 Global Marketing Strategies Jean-Pierre Jeannet,Hubert D.
