The Invisalign System :

The Invisalign System Orhan C. Tuncay, 2006 Unlike conventional fixed orthodontic treatment approaches Invisalign is a system that uses diagnostics data to create a three dimensional image of the desired course of tooth movement a series of custom made clear plastic aligners are then fabricated and used to achieve the treatment goal This book explains the technique

Treatment Effectiveness of the Invisalign® System Aileen Sehee Kim, 2013 The aim of the investigation was to search the current literature from April 2005 to December 2012 and determine the effectiveness of orthodontic tooth movement using the Invisalign system With changes in attachments implemented within the past few years a more recent appraisal of the available literature is of value It is expected that this systematic review will provide a more up to date understanding of the treatment effects efficacy in tooth movement and stability of the Invisalign system Additionally an evaluation of the indications and case selection using Invisalign will be conducted A computerized search was conducted using PubMed Evidence Based Medicine EBM Reviews Database Cochrane Database of Systematic Reviews Database of Abstracts of Reviews of Effects and Cochrane Central Register of Controlled Trials Science Direct and Thomsen s ISI Web of Science Inclusion criteria that were to be satisfied by the literature search results were publications in English and human clinical trials Studies not pertaining to the question of clinical effectiveness of Invisalign were selected for exclusion Case reports book chapters and review papers were considered separately for analysis and contribution to the general information gathering in the systematic review Book chapters were excluded Quality assessment was performed on the studies that fulfilled the inclusion criteria The quality and design of the study was considered Of the studies that passed the quality assessment stage a thorough evaluation was completed Summaries of the included articles were prepared and information regarding study design subjects treatment times and outcomes were organized in tabulated form Appraisal of the included studies was performed using the 2010 CONSORT statement and 2009 ADA Clinical Recommendations Handbook Overall of the 271 studies reviewed Stage I 23 were selected for further review Stage II Ultimately 10 studies were included in the systematic review Stage III In summary after thorough analysis of the studies it has been shown that Invisalign is an effective appliance for minor space closure lingual constriction and correction of anterior rotations and marginal ridge height discrepancies However Invisalign lacks the ability to correct anteroposterior discrepancies occlusal contacts extrusion and rotations greater than 15 degrees While the achieved and predicted tooth movement discrepancy was very minimal it was found that overbite must be overcorrected

Alexander Chernev, This note presents two stylized examples to illustrate the process of writing a marketing plan The marketing plans presented here follow a common structure They begin with an executive summary followed by a situation overview and an action plan and conclude with a set of relevant exhibits The crux of the marketing plan is the action plan which follows the G STIC framework It includes an outline of the goal s that the company aims to achieve with its offering an outline of the offering s strategy which involves identifying the target market s customers the company collaborators competitors and the context in which they operate as well as the offering s value proposition for target customers the company and collaborators a description of the marketing tactics product service brand price incentives communication and distribution an implementation plan that identifies the processes by which the company will develop the offering and deploy it in the market and the control measures that provide the metrics for evaluating the company s performance and monitoring the external environment This note is an excerpt Appendix C from Strategic Marketing Management Theory and Practice by Alexander Chernev Cerebellum Press 2019 Strategic Marketing Management: Theory and Practice Alexander Chernev, 2019-01-01 Strategic Marketing Management Theory and Practice offers a systematic overview of the fundamentals of marketing theory defines the key principles of marketing management and presents a value based framework for developing viable market offerings The theory presented stems from the view of marketing as a value creation process that is central to any business enterprise The discussion of marketing theory is complemented by a set of practical tools that enable managers to apply the knowledge contained in the generalized frameworks to specific business problems and market opportunities The information on marketing theory and practice contained in this book is organized into eight major parts The first part defines the essence of marketing as a business discipline and outlines an overarching framework for marketing management that serves as the organizing principle for the information presented in the rest of the book Specifically we discuss the role of marketing management as a value creation process the essentials of marketing strategy and tactics as the key components of a company s business model and the process of developing an actionable marketing plan Part Two focuses on understanding the market in which a company operates Specifically we examine how consumers make choices and outline the main steps in the customer decision journey that lead to the purchase of a company's offerings. We further discuss the ways in which companies conduct market research to gather market insights in order to make informed decisions and develop viable courses of action. Part Three covers issues pertaining to the development of a marketing strategy that will guide the company's tactical activities. Here we focus on three fundamental aspects of a company's marketing strategy: the identification of target customers, the development of a customer value proposition, and the development of a value proposition for the company and its collaborators. The discussion of the strategic aspects of marketing management includes an in-depth analysis of the key principles of creating market value in a competitive context. The next three parts of the book focus on the marketing tactics viewed as a process of designing, communicating, and delivering value. Part Four describes how companies design their offerings and specifically how they develop key aspects of their products, services, brands, prices, and incentives. In Part Five we address the ways in which companies manage their marketing communication and the role of personal selling as a means of persuading customers to choose purchase and use a company's offerings. Part Six explores the role of distribution channels in delivering the company's offerings to target customers by examining the value delivery process both from a manufacturer's and a retailer's point of view. The seventh part of the book focuses on the ways in which companies manage growth. Specifically, we discuss strategies used by companies to gain and defend market position and in this context address the issues of pioneering advantage, managing sales growth, and managing product lines. We further address the process of developing new market offerings and the ways in which companies manage the relationship with their customers. The final part of this book presents a set of tools that illustrate the practical application of marketing theory. Specifically, Part Eight delineates two workbooks: a workbook for segmenting the market and identifying target customers, and a workbook for developing the strategic and tactical components of a company's business model. This part also contains examples of two marketing plans: one dealing with the launch of a new offering and the other focused on managing an existing offering.
