Dr Guillaume Burghouwt, 2012-10-01 The ongoing deregulation and liberalization of worldwide air transport markets confronts airport planners with an increasingly problematic context On the one hand the capital intensive large scale and complex airport investments need a detailed long medium term planning of airport infrastructure Such planning requires at least predictable traffic volumes and traffic composition within the planning horizon On the other hand airline route networks are increasingly dynamic structures that frequently show discontinuous changes As a consequence the much more volatile airport traffic restricts the value of detailed traffic forecasts Volatility of airport traffic and its composition requires flexibility of airport strategies and planning processes The book explores this dilemma through a detailed study of airline network development airport connectivity and airport planning in the deregulated EU air transport market The questions the book seeks to answer are how have airlines responded to the regime changes in EU aviation with respect to the configuration of their route networks what has been the impact of the reconfiguration of airline network configurations for the connectivity of EU airports how can airport planners and airport authorities deal with the increasingly uncertain airline network behaviour in Europe The use of airspace Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Transport Committee, 2009-07-10 The Government's Future of Air Transport strategy aims to significantly increase UK airport capacity over the next two decades to accommodate the predicted growth in demand for air travel New runways at Heathrow and Stansted airports are two of the key airport development proposals If all the White Paper supported airport development proposals came to fruition current Government forecasts predict that the number of passengers passing through UK airports will increase from 241 million passengers a year in 2007 to 455 million passengers a year in 2030 This UK growth matches air traffic predictions for the whole continent Eurocontrol the European Organisation for the Safety of Air Navigation predicts that European air traffic will double by 2020 If rising demand for air travel is to be met effectively through additional airport capacity a corresponding increase in airspace capacity must be realised However a country's airspace the portion of atmosphere above its territory and territorial waters controlled by that country is a finite resource UK airspace particularly in the South East of England is already some of the busiest and most complex to manage in the world This will almost certainly require improvements in the efficiency of the UK air traffic management system The Committee's inquiry aims to look at how to meet these challenges Its findings are aimed at those organisations responsible for airspace related decisions in the UK the CAA NATS and the Department for Transport Passenger numbers and freight demand globally have declined in 2008 and in the first months of 2009 In its conclusions and recommendations the Committee
