Amateur Telescope Making In The Internet Age Finding Parts Getting Help And More The Patrick Moore Practical Astronomy Series:

Amateur Telescope Making in the Internet Age Robert L. Clark, 2010-10-14 Building an astronomical telescope offers the amateur astronomer an exciting challenge with the possibility of ending up with a far bigger and better telescope than could have been afforded otherwise In the past the starting point has always been the grinding and polishing of at least the primary mirror a difficult and immensely time consuming process But now that the Internet has brought us together in a global village purchasing off the shelf goods such as parabolic mirrors eyepieces lenses and telescope tubes is possible There are also a vast number of used mirrors and lenses out there and it is now possible to track them down almost anywhere in the world Online stores and auction houses have facilitated commerce regarding all sorts of useful optical components at a reasonable price This is a book about making telescopes from available parts It provides guidance on where to look and what to look for in selecting items useful for telescope making and explains how to assemble these components to produce an excellent instrument on a tight budget At one time many amateurs made their own telescopes from home made parts In today's rushed world that has almost become a lost art The Internet offers a wonderful alternative to either buying a pricey scope fully assembled or making your own from scratch

Amateur Telescope Making Stephen Tonkin, 2012-12-06 Many amateur astronomers make their own instruments either because of financial considerations or because they are just interested Amateur Telescope Making offers a variety of designs for telescopes mounts and drives which are suitable for the home constructor The designs range from simple to advanced but all are within the range of a moderately well equipped home workshop The book not only tells the reader what he can construct but also what it is sensible to construct given what time is available commercially Thus each chapter begins with reasons for undertaking the project then looks at theoretical consideration before finishing with practical instructions and advice An indication is given as to the skills required for the various projects Appendices list reputable sources of mail order materials and components The telescopes and mounts range from shoestring very cheap instruments to specialist devices that are unavailable commercially

Real Astronomy with Small Telescopes Michael Gainer, 2006-12-12 This book demonstrates the use of an 80mm refractor and shows how it can be used as a real scientific instrument The author is an experienced small telescope user and an astronomy educator and he provides step by step instructions for numerous scientific activities Users will find many activities and projects suitable for an 80mm refractor or 90mm reflector or Maksutov that have not been published elsewhere Emphasis is on measurement and discovery activities rather than on casual observing This book will provide amateur observers with the knowledge and skill that will help them make genuine contributions to the field of astronomy

Care of Astronomical Telescopes and Accessories M. Barlow Pepin, 2006-03-30 Commercially made astronomical telescopes are better and less expensive than ever before and their optical and mechanical performance can be superb When a good quality telescope fails to perform as well as it might the reason is quite probably that it needs a little care and attention Here is a complete guide for anyone who wants to understand more than just the basics of astronomical telescopes and accessories and how to maintain them in the peak of condition The latest on safely adjusting cleaning and maintaining your equipment is combined with thoroughly updated methods from the old masters Here too are details of choosing new and used optics and accessories along with enhancements you can make to extend their versatility and useful lifetime This book is for you Really Looking after an astronomical telescope isn't only for the experts although there are some things that only an expert should attempt and every serious amateur astronomer will find invaluable information here gleaned from Barlow Pepin's many years experience working with optical instruments Patrick Moore's practical astronomy series ,19?? Building and Using Binoscopes Norman Butler,2017-10-03 Covering both homemade and commercial products this book provides the reader with simple and straightforward information about the modeling building and use of binoscopes Binoscopes can be thought of as binoculars enlarged to the size of telescopes essentially a combination of the two Constructing a binoscope is easier than most people think but it still demands attention to detail and proper background knowledge The author goes on to provide additional information about the products currently on the market should the reader choose to purchase one instead of building it Lastly the book also compares binoscopes with telescopes in great detail outlining the differences the reader can expect to see in the night sky from using both The celestial views obtained with a binoscope compared to a single telescope of the same aperture are a very different experience The new edition emphasizes the obvious advantages of viewing celestial objects through a binoscope There are also many new photos and additional information on the latest equipment and some very special and rare equipment a collector might be interested in Newly added cartoons and additional images of beautiful deep sky objects in each of the chapters makes reading the book a more enjoyable experience Finally there is a new comet discovery form and guide to follow for such discoveries and a complete list of Messier objects for those interested in searching for these Amateur Telescope Making ,1953 Provides information on amateur telescope making Includes a photo gallery a FAQ section and a list of related books and vendors Links to related sites Making and Using a Telescope Hugh Percival Wilkins,Patrick Moore,1956 Amateur Telescope Making Advanced (Book Two) Albert Graham Ingalls,1963 Presents information for amateurs building telescopes provided by Berthold Hamburger Includes instructions for making screens mirrors and telescopes Offers photographs of telescopes Amateur Telescope Making Albert Graham Ingalls,1961 Using Your First Serious Telescope Bruce I. Wingate,2012-07-01 Buying and Using Your First Serious Telescope is intended primarily for intermediate level amateur astronomers who want to conduct astronomical research predominantly through visual observing techniques It is a comprehensive reference source for numerous research projects and programs that amateurs can carry out relating the Moon planets Sun stars and other astronomical phenomena within the solar system This is a fully detailed manual for conducting astronomical research It includes all the necessary introductory material regarding equipment its optimization testing and maintenance Even though many or most amateurs must work in light polluted skies at least compared to those in the locations of major professional observatories there are still many research programs that can be conducted on solar system objects not only the Moon but also on the brighter deep sky objects and transient events such as meteors large asteroids and comets Amateur Telescope Making, Book Three Albert Graham Ingalls,1971 Amateur Telescope Making (Advanced) Albert Graham Ingalls,1937 Amateur Telescope Making Book One ,1966 Amateur Telescope Making ,1956 Amateur Telescope Making ,1962 Amateur Telescope Making Albert G.
