 exist Recently a new psychometric questionnaire has been introduced in the field Labeled the Standard Usability Percentile Rank Questionnaire SUPR Q this new psychometric tool s global score is made up of a percentile ranking based on a composite weighting of four factors Usability Trust Credibility Appearance and Loyalty In addition percentile ranks are provided for each factor so the strengths and weakness by factor can be assessed In November of 2010 the User Experience Research team for Kelley Blue Book a third party automotive website used the SUPR Q as the post test questionnaire for a desirability study The SUPR Q was used to assess measures of Trust Comfort Loyalty and Appearance of two proposed site redesign concepts Ultimately the KBB com User Experience design and research teams discovered that the new SUPR Q psychometric questionnaire results did provided valuable insights Particularly enlightening were percentile rank comparisons across all four sub categories Trust Comfort Loyalty and Appearance against other competitive third party auto sites However other confounding factors may have rendered the SUPR Q less effective in providing statistically significant data regarding how the two proposed redesign concepts performed against each other Assets ,2006 Human
