Written Corrective Feedback: The Role of Learner Engagement Alia Moser, 2020-12-21 The book provides new insights into written corrective feedback by describing students' expectations as well as mediating factors that influence their engagement with it. The book draws on an extensive dataset to illustrate secondary school students' behavioural, cognitive and emotional engagement with written corrective feedback and the extent to which mediating factors such as teachers' peers, feedback options, attitudes and emotions foster or hinder it. It shows why teachers need to provide students with the purpose of the corrective feedback they provide, explain how such feedback works and introduce strategies that can be employed to engage with it. Based on the finding that a combination of several feedback types is essential to ensure learner engagement, the book also provides an extensive description and multiple authentic examples of the Engagement Feedback Mediator Model that was developed in the context of this study.

Board Games in the CLIL Classroom Thomai Alexiou, Athanasios Karasimos, 2023-12-18 The present book explores how modern board gaming and language teaching can be beneficially combined to achieve optimal impact. Modern board games have a lot to offer language learners and teachers and they should play a much more significant role in what has been labelled Content and Language Integrated Learning or CLIL. Modern board games require cooperation, problem solving, active discovery, interpretation and analysis. Most importantly, modern board games allow students to explore a hypothetical environment without the risk of language errors. The key ingredient of the present book is game-based learning and teaching theory or GBLTT, a theoretical framework which measures learning outcomes based on gaming and learning procedures. GBLTT is focused on balancing information and gameplay as well as putting a focus on the ability of each learner to retain language competence and to put their subject to realistic situations.

Value Making in International Economic Law and Regulation Donatella Alessandrini, 2016-01-29 This book examines the contemporary production of economic value in today's financial economies. Much of the regulatory response to the global financial crisis has been based on the assumption that curbing the speculative excesses of the financial sphere is a necessary and sufficient condition for restoring a healthy economic system endowed with real values as distinct from those produced by financial markets. How, though, can the intrinsic value of goods and services produced in the sphere of the so-called real economy be disentangled from the artificial value engineered within the financial sphere? Examining current projects of international legal regulation, this book questions the regulation of the financial sphere insofar as its excesses are juxtaposed to some notion of economic normality. Given the problem of neatly distinguishing these domains and so more generally between economy and society and production and social reproduction, it considers the limits of our current conceptualization of value production and measurement with specific reference to arrangements in the areas of finance, trade and labour. Drawing on a range of innovative work in the social sciences and attentive to the spatial and temporal connections that make the global economy as well as the racial, gender and class articulations of the social reproductive field.

within it it further asks what alternative arrangements might be able to affect and indeed alter the value making processes that underlie our current international regulatory framework

Policy and Politics in Global Primary English Janet Enever, 2018-06-14 Janet Enever explores the complex forces that shape national and local language education policymaking for the early introduction of English as a foreign language at primary and pre primary levels worldwide This is the first book of its kind demonstrating the extent to which English is now perceived as a prerequisite for participation in the global economy reflecting the rapid development of early start English now exploding across Asia Latin America and other fast growing economies This is a timely and important book Professor Enever demonstrates comprehensive knowledge of primary English policy and practice in a range of countries and from a sound theoretical framework draws together evidence to show how policies are all too often guided by short term political considerations rather than sound educational practice Whilst critiquing inappropriate practice she also analyses the conditions which have the potential to lead to quality and equitable English language programmes at the primary level David Hayes Department of Applied Linguistics Brock University Canada

Finite Media Sean Cubitt, 2016-12-08 While digital media give us the ability to communicate with and know the world their use comes at the expense of an immense ecological footprint and environmental degradation In Finite Media Sean Cubitt offers a large scale rethinking of theories of mediation by examining the environmental and human toll exacted by mining and the manufacture use and disposal of millions of phones computers and other devices The way out is through an eco political media aesthetics in which people use media to shift their relationship to the environment and where public goods and spaces are available to all Cubitt demonstrates this through case studies ranging from the 1906 film The Story of the Kelly Gang to an image of Saturn taken during NASA's Cassini Huygens mission suggesting that affective responses to images may generate a populist environmental politics that demands better ways of living and being Only by reorienting our use of media Cubitt contends can we overcome the failures of political elites and the ravages of capital
