Managing Organizational Ecologies Keith Alexander,Ilfryn Price,2013-05-02 The term Facilities Management has become global but fraught with confusion as to what the term signifies

For some notably in the USA Facilities Management remains a discipline of human ecology Elsewhere the term has become conflated with an alternative meaning providing or outsourcing the provision of various services essential to the operation of particular buildings This volume redresses that imbalance to remind Facilities Management of its roots presenting evidence of Facilities Management success stories that engage the wider objectives of the organizations they serve and engaging students scholars and critical practitioners of general management with an appreciation of the power and influence of physical space and its place in the theory and practice of organizations This book includes management perspectives from outside the field to ensure that the issues raised are seen in an organizational and management context informing debate within the Facilities Management fraternity It draws on human ecology and the perspective of the firm as itself an intra organizational ecology of social constructs The ecology of a firm is not restricted to the firm s boundaries It extends to wider relationships between the firm and its stakeholders including in an age of outsourced building services the Facilities Management supply chain This volume offers arguments and evidence that managing such constructs is a key role for Facilities Management and an important participant in the provision of truly usable spaces Exploring Services Science

th CAiSE 2004 was the 16 in the series of International Conferences on Advanced Information Systems Engineering In the year 2004 the conference was hosted by the Faculty of Computer Science and Information Technology Riga Technical University Latvia Since the late 1980s the CAiSE conferences have provided a forum for the presentation and exchange of research results and practical experiences within the eld of Information Systems Engineering The conference theme of CAiSE 2004 was Knowledge and Model Driven Information Systems Engineering for Networked Organizations Modern businesses and IT systems are facing an ever more complex en ronment characterized by openness variety and change Organizations are coming less self sufficient and increasingly dependent on business partners and other actors. These trends call for openness of business as well as IT systems i.e. the ability to connect and interoperate with other systems. Furthermore, organizations are experiencing ever more variety in their business in all conceivable dimensions. The different competencies required by the workforce are multiplying. In the same way, the variety in technology is overwhelming with a multitude of languages, platforms, devices, standards and products. Moreover, organizations need to manage an environment that is constantly changing and where lead times, product life cycles and partner relationships are shortening.

The demand of having to constantly adapt IT to changing technologies and business practices has resulted in the birth of new ideas which may have a profound impact on the information systems engineering practices in future years, such as autonomic computing, component and services marketplaces and dynamically generated software.
