The Outline of Knowledge: The history of the world James Albert Richards, 1924 Organizing the Green World: A Conceptual History of Botanical Classification Tod F. Stuessy, 2025-09-02 This book focuses on plant systematics and evolution with special interest on the history and philosophy of botanical classification Tracing the history of how humans have dealt with ordering the plant world is very much a glimpse of how human culture and science have progressed over the past 2000 years The objective in this book is to present ideas on plant classification beginning with classical Greek and Roman scholars through the Middle Ages into the Renaissance and finally to the modern 21st century Significant quantitative methods in classification have originated within the past 70 years which have never before been integrated with previous historical perspectives Most textbooks of systematic botany contain an historical introduction or perhaps a chapter on the history of classification but this book presents much greater detail on the classifications themselves and the cultural dimensions of the different time periods Biographical detail is also provided to give a better appreciation of the individual botanists who have contributed new ideas in the search for maximally predictive systems

Living Under the Shadow John Grattan, Robin Torrence, 2016-06-03 Popularist treatments of ancient disasters like volcanic eruptions have grossly overstated their capacity for death destruction and societal collapse Contributors to this volume from anthropology archaeology environmental studies geology and biology show that human societies have been incredibly resilient and in the long run have often recovered remarkably well from wide scale disruption and significant mortality They have often used eruptions as a trigger for environmental enrichment cultural change and adaptation These historical studies are relevant to modern hazard management because they provide records for a far wider range of events and responses than have been recorded in written records yet are often closely datable and trackable using standard archaeological and geological techniques Contributors also show the importance of traditional knowledge systems in creating a cultural memory of dangerous locations and community responses to disaster The global and temporal coverage of the research reported is impressive comprising studies from North and Central America Europe Asia and the Pacific and ranging in time from the Middle Palaeolithic to the modern day
