studies of apparently successful as well as ineffective innovations from the early eighteenth to the late twentieth century. Language learning teaching developments in Brazil, China, England, France, Germany, and Italy are considered along with global innovations in language learner lexicography while the languages considered include Chinese, English, French, Italian, Latin, Portuguese, and Spanish. Various types of primary source material are utilized illustrating the possibilities of applied linguistic historiography for both students and academics new to the field. The book questions ideas of perpetual innovation and progress supporting the adoption of more critical perspectives on change and innovation in applied linguistics and language teaching. English Studies from Archives to Prospects Irena Zovko Dinković, Jelena Mihaljević

Djigunović, 2016-06-22 This volume explores English Studies from the perspective of linguistics and applied linguistics. By examining developments within their selected topics, the authors of these 18 chapters provide a broad overview of English Studies as related to their specific points of interest. Topics range from the well established such as negation, grammaticalization, and the role of culture in learning English to those that are currently being revisited or are considered relatively new such as corpus analysis, English as a lingua franca, and third language acquisition. The chapters reflect a modern approach to linguistic and applied linguistic phenomena including diachronic and synchronic perspectives as well as quantitative and qualitative research paradigms. English Studies as practiced at the English Department in Zagreb during the last 80 years, the anniversary of which instigated the invitation of contributions for this collection, are presented here as a vibrant field characterized by dynamics and complexities that introduce novel ideas and help us embrace emerging aspects of more established concepts.
