

patterns used in several different model answers and then combine them in your own way in so that your writing is both natural and different from the writing of other candidates.

7. How can I get a higher score in IELTS writing?

Read read read read! You should read as many different model answers as you can, borrow sentence structures from each and then combine them in your own way. Rather than learning individual, isolated items of vocabulary you should try to learn them in the context of the whole sentences. If you learn what a word means but do not know how to use it correctly in a sentence it is useless to you. Likewise, if you learn a sentence structure but omit a preposition or use the wrong verb tense, it will not improve your score. Your writing must be accurate.

8. Can I ask to have my writing marked again if I don't get the score I need?

You can ask to have your writing rechecked, but you have to pay an extra fee for this. Rechecking is only worthwhile if your overall band score is just a little lower than the band score that you need.
