

Harvard Business School and a short history of the Case Study Method

Mark Thomas: September 10, 2013

"Love and marriage," says old blue eyes himself, Mr. Frank Sinatra, "Go together like a horse and carriage." This idealised pairing might be said to be relevant for Harvard Business School and the Case Study Method.

HBS was created in 1908 and established its case study method in the 1920s. Today, this teaching method is as close to business school orthodoxy as you can possible get. There are approximately 14 000 business schools in the world and you would be hard pressed to find one that did not uses cases to teach business. But why did HBS start teaching this way and how many cases does it sell each year?

9, 764, 000! That is how many cases Harvard Business School sold in 2011. Not quite 10 million but not bad all the same. Trends suggest that this has been increasing by about 7-8% per year which means that next year cases sold will go past the magic 10 million figure.

Harvard claims that 80% of the courses sold through out the world are written by Harvard faculty though contrary to popular belief Harvard Business School did not invent the case study method. In fact, it was borrowed from Harvard Law School that had been using the method for some time. In was in the 1920s that the business school's second Dean, Wallace B. Donham realised how popular these could be and encouraged the production and the use of these for the students. This was one of the major factors
