Squeaky is a young girl who loves to run races and win. Read "Raymond's Run" to find out what Squeaky learns on the day of the big race.

● PLOT: EXPOSITION

Look at the underlined words in lines 7–9 that describe Squeaky. On the lines below, write what you know about Squeaky so far.

Squeaky does not have to do housework, but she looks after her brother Raymond. Raymond needs special care. Squeaky is protective of him. Squeaky is short, has a squeaky voice, and likes to run fast.

RAYMOND'S RUN

Based on the story by
TONI CADE BAMBARA

BACKGROUND This story is set in Harlem, a neighborhood in New York City. Since about 1910, Harlem has been one of the largest African-American communities in the United States. It is also home to people of many different backgrounds.

I don't have to work around the house like some girls. All I have to do is mind my brother Raymond, which is enough.

Raymond needs looking after because he's not quite right. A lot of rude people have lots to say about Raymond, but they have to say it to me. I'd much rather knock you down than talk, even though I'm small and have a squeaky voice. That's how I got my name, Squeaky. If things get rough, I run. I'm the fastest thing on two feet. ●

10 There is no track meet that I don't win the first-place medal. I'm the swiftest thing in the neighborhood. That goes for Gretchen, too. She says that she is going to win the first-place medal this year. What a joke. No one can beat me.

I'm walking down Broadway practicing my breathing.
