Agricultural Land Use and Natural Gas Extraction Conflicts Madeline Taylor, Tina Hunter, 2018-11-02 Onshore unconventional gas operations in most jurisdictions operate on the legal principle that all activities during exploration and extraction are temporary in nature The concept that the onshore unconventional gas industry has a temporary effect on the land on which it operates creates a regulatory paradox On one hand unconventional gas activities create energy security national wealth and a burgeoning export industry On the other agricultural land and agriculturalists may be significantly disadvantaged by unconventional gas activities potentially producing permanent damage to non renewable fertile soils and spoiling the underground water tables Thus threatening future food security and food sovereignty This book explores the socio regulatory dimensions of coexistence between agricultural and onshore unconventional gas land uses in the jurisdictions with the highest concentration of proven unconventional gas reserves Australia Canada the USA the UK France Poland and China In exploring the differing regulatory standpoints of unconventional gas land uses on productive farming land in the chosen jurisdictions this book provides an original three part categorisation of regulatory approaches addressing the coexistence of agricultural land and unconventional gas namely adaptive management precautionary and finally statism

It offers a timely and topical approach to socio legal natural resource governance theory based on the participation transparency and empowerment for agricultural landholders examining how differing frameworks such as the collective bargaining framework can create equitable and sustainable contractual arrangements with unconventional gas companies

Laxman, Abdul Haseeb Ansari, 2023-08-16 Conservation Policies for Agricultural Biodiversity A Comparative Study of Laws and Policies focuses on the challenge of securing the ecological future of the planet and its inhabitants by exploring the Convention of Biological Diversity and the Nagoya Protocol on Access and Benefit Sharing and WTO laws such as SPSS TBT GATT This book demonstrates how the urgent problem of biodiversity loss can be addressed by challenging notions of national self interest and security for the purpose of implementing policies that will benefit humanity and more importantly ensure the future of our planet Delves into the current approaches adopted in the framework of global environmental governance Investigates the origins operations and effects of legal regimes policies and practices related to the conservation of biodiversity Presents a comparative study of laws and policies providing an in depth understanding of the factors behind the lack of success in conserving agricultural biodiversity Distributional consequences of wheat policy in Sudan: A simulation model analysis Dorosh, Paul A., 2021-12-15

Despite reforms in early 2021 including a devaluation of the currency and a liberalization of imports there remain significant distortions in Sudan's wheat value chain especially related to subsidized sales prices of flatbread This flatbread subsidy a key component of wheat policy is not well targeted Calculations based on 2009 national household survey data and current 2021 prices and wheat supply show that urban poor households annually receive slightly less from this subsidy than urban non poor households 18 900 and 20 800 SDG capita Rural poor households receive only 2 700 SDG capita This paper presents the results of several simulations of a partial equilibrium model of Sudan's wheat economy that are designed to analyze the impacts of recent shocks and various policy options Model simulations show that increased wheat imports such as those financed by food aid add to supplies for processing into wheat flour flatbread and other wheat products resulting in lower prices for consumers and increased consumption but also disincentives for production A 300 000 ton increase in wheat imports as occurred in early 2021 results in an 8 percent increase in wheat consumption and a 35 percent decline in the market price of non flatbread wheat products Production falls by 12 percent Since flatbread prices are unchanged wheat consumption of the urban poor for whom flatbread is the major wheat product consumed increases by only 4 percent Raising flatbread prices by 30 percent to reduce the size of the fiscal subsidy reduces total consumption of flatbread by 17 percent and sharply reduces wheat consumption and real incomes of the urban poor. All households suffer a loss of 41 to 45 percent in the value of flatbread subsidies received. The urban poor experience the largest decline in total consumption of wheat 14 percent and in total income 11 percent. The average total income loss for all households is only 3 percent. Reducing the flatbread subsidy without a compensating income transfer would significantly reduce the welfare of the urban poor and likely threaten political stability. Our results suggest that a combination of key wheat policies involving high levels of imports including injection of food aid wheat into the economy in late 2020 and subsidized flatbread will significantly benefit urban poor households. Nonetheless, there are important data gaps on several aspects of the wheat sector including no recent nationally representative household expenditure survey data. In addition, greater transparency including publication of quantities and prices of government purchases, sales of wheat and wheat flour and quantities and prices of subsidized flatbread across the country has the potential to significantly increase the efficiency of the entire wheat sector. As shown in this paper, Sudan's wheat policies in recent years such as increased wheat imports, price subsidies in the wheat value chain and low prices of flatbread have in general favored consumers to the detriment of producers. These interventions in the wheat value chain, especially those related to subsidies on flatbread, have especially large effects on the welfare of urban households, making these policies particularly politically sensitive. However, they have entailed high fiscal costs threatening macroeconomic stability and crowding out other possible investments to promote growth and poverty reduction. Careful policy analysis and ongoing monitoring of outcomes and new developments will be needed to help guide the important choices ahead.

Impact assessment of the IFPRI agricultural science and technology indicators (ASTI) project Norton, George W., 2011-03-21. Well-funded and well-staffed agricultural research systems with efficient allocation of research resources are important for improving agricultural productivity and for meeting other agricultural development goals. Assessing research system funding adequacy and staffing as compared to alternative investments and allocating research resources within systems require data on agricultural research investments. The Agricultural Science and Technology Indicators (ASTI) initiative at IFPRI is the most comprehensive source of agricultural research statistics for low and middle income countries. Since 2001, building on an earlier International Service for National Agricultural Research (ISNAR) effort, ASTI has developed a network of institutional collaborators at national and regional levels who assist in implementing surveys to collect agricultural research investment data in Africa, Asia, the Middle East, and Latin America. ASTI compiles processes and publicizes the data at national, regional, and global levels. It has published a broad set of country briefs, notes, and regional synthesis reports that have been cited in national and international policy documents. The primary outputs from ASTI are the country data sets, which are now published on the website <http://www.asti.cgiar.org>. Data are published for 32 countries in Sub-Saharan Africa, 15 countries in Latin America and the Caribbean, 5 countries in South Asia, 7 countries in East and Southeast Asia, 5 countries in the Middle East and North Africa and 1 country in the Pacific The ASTI website's Data Tool aids in accessing the data The website's readers can click on a world map to find for individual countries data on five types of research expenditure variables in US and PPPs five types of research staff variables and five research share variables Readers can then plot variables against each other in a graph or export and download data in Excel files Data can also be uploaded using a survey form available in three languages Since 2004 ASTI has produced 91 country level publications 50 country briefs notes and reports and 16 fact sheets on gender disaggregated capacity indicators for Sub Saharan Africa 13 briefs and reports for the Asia Pacific region 5 for the Middle East and North Africa and 7 for Latin America and the Caribbean ASTI researchers themselves have conducted relatively few in depth analyses using the data but they have teamed with other researchers on papers and presentations and other researchers have made significant use of ASTI data The Handbook of Global Agricultural Markets L.
