Transport Terminals and Modal Interchanges Christopher Blow,2012-05-23 This is the first book to review a trend in transport systems which has only recently come of age the multi modal interchange Separate modes of transport are being linked through joined up thinking and transport designers and authorities are only now able to exploit interchange opportunities This book presents examples of how these new opportunities have been planned and designed and outlines how transfer and mobility can be improved in the future Blow takes the airport as the focal point of true multi modal passenger terminals and presents the development of these buildings as representing a new experience in travel The book shows that the success of the experience of transferring from one mode of transport to another depends on the many factors including congestion in an already overloaded system and the way that designers and managers have addressed contingency planning International examples are drawn from areas where mobility is most concentrated and the demands on design are at their highest The book also addresses important issues of rebuilding and redevelopment where once separate modes of transport are being linked to each other and where short term inconveniences rectify past wrongs in the long term It is a compendium of architectural and engineering achievement Aviation Automation Charles E. Billings,2018-01-29 The advent of very compact very powerful digital computers has made it possible to automate a great many processes that formerly required large complex machinery Digital computers have made possible revolutionary changes in industry commerce and transportation This book an expansion and revision of the author s earlier technical papers on this subject describes the development of automation in aircraft and in the aviation system its likely evolution in the future and the effects that these technologies have had and will have on the human operators and managers of the system It suggests concepts that may be able to enhance human machine relationships in future systems The author focuses on the ability of human operators to work cooperatively with the constellation of machines they command and control because it is the interactions among these system elements that result in the system s success or failure whether in aviation or elsewhere Aviation automation has provided great social and technological benefits but these benefits have not come without cost In recent years new problems in aircraft have emerged due to failures in the human machine relationship These incidents and accidents have motivated this inquiry into aviation automation Similar problems in the air traffic management system are predicted as it becomes more fully automated In particular incidents and accidents have occurred which suggest that the principle problems with today's aviation automation are associated with its complexity coupling autonomy and opacity These problems are not unique to aviation they exist in other highly dynamic domains as well The author suggests that a different approach to automation called human centered automation offers potential benefits for system performance by enabling a more cooperative human machine relationship in the control and management of aircraft and air traffic FAR/AIM 2018: Up-to-Date FAA
