have characterised young people's internet use in China. The problem of internet addiction (wangyin) is seen by some parents as so severe that they have sought psychiatric help for their children. This book, which is based on extensive original research including discussions with psychiatrists, parents and internet addicted young people, explores the conflicting attitudes which this issue reveals. It contrasts the views of young people who see internet use, especially gaming, as a welcome escape from the dehumanising pressures of contemporary Chinese life with the approach of those such as their parents who medicalise internet overuse and insist that working hard for good school grades is the correct way to progress. The author shows that these contrasting attitudes lead to battles which are often fierce and violent and argues that the greater problem may in fact lie with parents and other authority figures who misguidedly apply high pressure to enforce young people to conform to the empty values of a modern dehumanised consumer oriented society.

Angela Carter: New Critical Readings Sonya Andermahr, Lawrence Phillips, 2012-08-09
Bringing together leading international scholars of contemporary fiction and modern women writers, this book provides authoritative new critical readings of Angela Carter's work from a variety of innovative theoretical and disciplinary approaches. Angela Carter: New Critical Readings both evaluates Carter's legacy as feminist provocateur and postmodern stylist and broaches new ground in considering Carter as variously a poet and a naturalist. Including coverage of Carter's earliest writings and her journalism as well as her more widely studied novels, short stories and dramatic works, the book covers such topics as rescripting the canon, surrealism and Carter's poetics.
