Q1: What is the Australian standard for main switchboards?

Currents Australian standard is AS/NZS 4806.1: 2003 originating from IEC 60439. This new series of standard AS/NZS 4806 will supersede the current standard is AS/NZS 4806 if the new standard gets published in 2009.

Q2: What is meant by TPA?

Type tested assembly (TPA) is a low voltage switchgear and substation assembly that is certified for its performance in per AS/NZS 4806.1.

Q3: What are the type tests that need to be carried out to verify compliance?

- verification of temperature rise tests
- verification of the dielectric properties
- verification of the mechanical withstand strength
- verification of the effectiveness of the protective circuit
- verification of clearance and creepage distances
- verification of mechanical operations
- verification of the degree of protection and terminal separation

Q4: Can you state type tested assembly if the switchboard construction is different to the tested arrangement or made modifications for other different applications?

No. If modifications are made for the construction of the switchboard, new type tests have to be carried out only for as far as such modifications are likely to adversely affect the results of the T type tests based above.

Q5: What is meant by PPA?

Priority-type tested assembly (PPA) is a low voltage switching and substation assembly, comprising both type tested and non-type tested arrangements. In this construction, non-type tested arrangements need to be derived (eg. be subordinated etc.) from type tested arrangements. This switchboard construction is mostly used as it is not possible to cover all the desirable configurations to cover type tested arrangements and therefore constructed switchboard arrangements derived from type tested arrangements is more practical in most switch applications.

Q6: The you need to perform any other tests even if you have type test certified?

No. Every switchboard need to be subject tested or verify by the manufacturer. However, you are required to do some tests to maintain and substation and as follows:

- Inspection of the switchboard including inspection of wiring and, if necessary, electrical open circuit test.
 - The effectiveness of mechanical switching elements, interlocks, fuses, etc., shall be checked
 - The connections and cables shall be checked for proper fixing and the absence of proper securing
 - A visual inspection is also necessary to ensure that the protected degree of protection, creepage distances and clearances are maintained
 - The connections, especially shrouded and bolted connections, shall be checked for sufficient current, possibly by random tests
